SIEGE OF PARIS.

Germans Preparations for the Bombardment—Solemn Religious Services Before it Opens—All Service on Friday—The French Driven Back with Loss—Supplies Giving Out—Starving Women in a State of Desperation.

VERSAILLES, Oct. 31, via LONDON.—The Germans around Paris are holding solemn religious services today. The bombardment of the city commences to-morrow. Invitations have been sent to the rulers of the various States of South Germany to come forward to witness the bombardment.

A DETERMINED RESISTANCE.

It is generally believed here in the Stock Exchange that Paris will offer a determined resistance to the besiegers.

ANOTHER BATTLE.

On Friday last the French drove back the German outpost at Le Bourget, a mile or so east of Fort St. Denis, on the northern boundary of Paris. At evening of that day the French were discovered in occupation in force of the position, which they had fortified. Today, therefore, the Second Division of the Guard attacked the point. After a hot and brilliant fight, the French were driven from the position back behind their fortifications. Thirty officers and about twelve hundred men were taken prisoners. The Prussian losses are acknowledged to be quite heavy, as the French fought behind earth-works.

HUNGER IN THE GARRISON.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—The news from Paris, received by way of the Prussian head-quarters before that city, is quite serious. French prisoners recently captured report that the troops behind the fortifications receive only half a pound of meat twice a week. Many French women and children from Paris approach the Prussian lines, and though they are warned they will be shot if they attempt to come nearer, rather court instant death than suffer starvation in the city. The rule to exclude all strangers from Paris, and to prevent the escape of citizens, is rigidly enforced.

GERMAN COMMUNICATIONS.

The railway from Chalons to Paris by way of Soissons has been restored, and the Prussians are now using it as a means of transporting troops and supplies.

DIPLOMATIC COURIERS.

ZURICH, Oct. 31.—The Swiss Government has asked of Prussia to be included in the permit to have a courier leave Paris every week with dispatches to the neutral Governments.

Paris Informed of the Fall of Metz—The Bombardment to Open at Once—Attempt on the Life of King Williams.

VERSAILLES, Oct. 30.—A formal notice of the capitulation of Metz has been sent to Paris, under a flag of truce. An immediate bombardment is determined upon. The King announces his consideration for the enormous number of prisoners, who must inevitably be subject to privations and sufferings under the best circumstances. Mercy to Paris would be cruelty to those who fought best for France. A large number of reinforcements have reached the intrenching lines today.

BERLIN, Oct. 31.—A report is current here that an attempt was made yesterday at Versailles on the life of King WILLIAM. The King was unhurt, but Gen. ROON, who stood near, was wounded.

MOVEMENTS IN THE EAST.

Bombardment and Capture of Dijon by the Germans—Frailsburg Starving—The French Commands in the East.

TOURS, Oct. 31.—An official dispatch received by the Ministers today from Beaune, dated yesterday, announces that the Prussians have occupied the City of Dijon. [Dijon is the capital of the Department of Cote d'Or, and is situated at confluence of the rivers Ouche and Suson, on the Canal de Bourgogne, and on the Paris and Lyons Railroad, 196 miles southeast of Paris. It is about ninety miles north of Lyons. It contains a population of about 35,000, and has several buildings of historical interest, among them a palace of of the Princes of Condé, a castle built by LOUIS XI. and LOUIS XII. It is the centre of considerable trade, the chief source of which is wine, it being the principal depot and market for the sale Burgundy. BOSSUET was a native of Dijon.] The Prussians were 12,000 strong, and were well provided with artillery. They attacked the city at 9 o'clock in the forenoon of Sunday, and the bombardment was continued until nearly nightfall. The town was not fortified, and the commander of the French not able to resist with his small force, was compelled to retreat.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—The Prussians continue the siege of Frailsburg, lungfully reckoning on starving out the garrison, whose supplies are beginning to fail. Gen. ERNEST has been appointed to the command of the Army of the East, in place of Gen. CAMBRIEL, who was compelled to resign on account of ill health.

Affairs at Metz—Bazaine's Army Chest—Histories of Bullet—Gunpowder a Substitute for Salt—Garibaldi Breaks up a Jesuits School.

SAARBRUCK, Oct. 30.—Before the capitulation of Metz, BAZAINE buried a caisse de armee, containing 40,000,000 francs in gold and 10,000,000 in silver. The Germans had received information about the treasure, and forced BAZAINE to reveal where he buried it. At Sedan, on the eve of the capitulation, the French officers divided among themselves the contents of the army chest, and it is said that NAPOLEON took 3,000,000 francs in fourgons de campagne.

Droves of sheep cover the road to Metz. The English National Ambulance Corps are forwarding wagons of provisions and salt, and American surgeons are flocking to the spot. The weather is wretched; rain is incessant, and the neighborhood of the Moselle is inundated. A week before the capitulation the soldiers consumed their food with gunpowder, by order of the surgeons, for the sake of the gunpowder therein.

GARIBALDI AND THE JESUITS.

TOURS, Oct. 30.—GARIBALDI summarily expelled from Dole, the Jesuit Fathers in charge of the school of Notre Dame de Mont Rolland. The proceeding has caused the utmost indignation. The free companies of Alsace refuse to serve under him, and threaten to shoot him.

NORTHERN OPERATIONS.

Bourbaki's Address to the Soldiers at Lille—His Plan of Operations—Bourbaki and Small-Pox at Amiens—Germans Besieging Longwy.

TOURS, Oct. 31.—Gen. BOURBAKI, in view of the capitulation of Metz, has issued a proclamation to the soldiers at Lille, dated yesterday. He says he has been called upon by the Minister of War to command the army of the North. The task is great, and, but for patriotism, and the sentiments now animating all, would be above his strength. His purpose was to organize immediately a corps d'armée, well provided with materials of war, to go to the aid of the besieged fortresses. He would give his best attention, and his life, if need be, to the work which the Government and all citizens must now pursue, namely, the national defense. Concord and confidence must now be had. The soldiers and citizens might count upon his devotion, and he should count upon their patriotism. The endeavors of his life belonged to the common work to punish the enemy and avenge France.

BOURBAKI AT AMIENS.

AMIENS, Oct. 31.—Gen. BOURBAKI arrived here yesterday, and was greeted with great enthusiasm. He announces his intention to form flying armies, with material to relieve the invested places, and takes the field at the head of the forces. Vigorous preparations for defense are making on all sides.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—The small pox is raging with violence at Amiens. The disease was brought there by fugitives from Paris.

SIEGE OF LONGWY.

LUXEMBOURG, Oct. 31.—A detachment of 6,000 troops from the army of Prince FREDERICK CHARLES has gone to besiege Longwy, near the Belgian border.

A France-Tireurs Fight with Prussians—Fifty Germans Put Three Hundred to Flight—French "Hack-whacking" Illustrated.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—A correspondent at Brussels, writing on the 25th inst., gives the following account of a fight by the France-Tireurs:

I had left Rethel at 6 o'clock on the morning of the 26th, and had gone fifteen miles, when, on approaching the small village of Lannon, discovered a line of twenty wagons loaded with provisions for the army, and some horses standing near, others lying dead on the ground, the work of the France-Tireurs. The convoy being insufficiently guarded, they had played havoc on it. At the same moment I saw the smoke of an engine, approaching on the road repaired by the Prussians, between Sedan and Rethel. The France-Tireurs, evidently expecting the train, had placed obstructions on the track, and lay concealed on the high, wooded ground, from an embankment 300 yards distant. On meeting the obstructions twenty cars were thrown from the track, and the engine broke loose. The train was filled with provisions, and escorted by fifty Prussian soldiers, under command of a captain. The 300 France-Tireurs, apparently astonished to see a number of soldiers pour out unhurt, fell back hurriedly after an ill-directed fire. The Prussians did not pursue, but remained with the train. The France-Tireurs, re-encouraged, returned to the attack. The Prussians, availing themselves of the cover of the carriages, poured a well-nourished fire among their ranks. The Frenchmen were again driven to flight, leaving ten or twelve of their number on the ground. The second attack reached the same, when suddenly two German companies, guard of the neighborhood, hearing the firing appeared on the scene. The France-Tireurs fled, losing sixteen killed and twenty-two prisoners, nine of whom were wounded. Some of the prisoners were uniformed, and others wore blouses. The latter were threatened with execution. The Prussians lost one killed and two wounded. The firing of the franco-tireurs was very bad. Six dead were subsequently found among the wagons previously attacked. They were three soldiers and three drivers. Such scenes are of daily occurrence.

PEACE PROSPECTS.

The Departments for War to the Last—Agitation and Wild Rumors Over the Surrender of Metz—The South and West Upheld the Republic—English Poetry and Press—War Impressions Among Austrian Officials.

TOURS, Oct. 31.—The Prefects and military commandants of a great number of departments telegraph to the Ministers here expressing the utmost indignation at the surrender of Metz, and the determination to continue the war to the last extremity. The agitation here is extreme, and the contradictory rumors which have been circulating all day contribute to increase the public anxiety. Some assert that peace has been signed without reference to the Tours Government; that BAZAINE has been acting in accordance with instructions from NAPOLEON, and that Gen. CHANGARNIER, refusing to surrender, took command of the troops in Metz, and will cut his way out. In nearly all the towns of the south and west the National Guards and citizens have made imposing demonstrations in favor of the Republic.

SENTIMENT AND BUSINESS.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—At a meeting of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce today, the Chairman deplored the continuance of the war, which, he hoped, would never be brought to an end by the efforts of M. THIERS. His mission to Versailles would certainly result in peace. As a compensation for the ills suffered in consequence of the war, by England, there was an influx of American visitors, who would otherwise have been traveling on the Continent. There had also been a vast increase in business orders, while, at the same time, cotton was declining. He advocated a petition against the entry monopoly.

VERSAILLES, Oct. 31.—The Nouvelliste de Versailles says in advance of M. THIERS coming, his visit will certainly be fruitless.

AN INDEFINITE WAR.

VIENNA, Oct. 31.—As Prussia still demands a cession of territory from France as a preliminary of peace, it is believed in official circles here that the war must proceed indefinitely.

THE FEELING IN MARSEILLES.

MARSEILLES, Oct. 30, via TOURS, Oct. 31.—Upon receiving news of the capitulation of Metz, a patriotic demonstration was made in the city. All the public places were closed and meetings held.

EARL GRANVILLE'S PROPOSITION.

BERLIN, Oct. 31.—Lord GRANVILLE's proposition was an armistice to enable elections to be held only, and did not involve peace. The Paris Government does not desire an election, but the Prussian Government will require one if an armistice is granted, and it will not be granted for any other purpose.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Polish Sympathy With France—Prayers for French Success Prohibited in Russia—The German Army—French Mails.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—The Polish Jews openly manifest their sympathy for France and in a more decided manner than the other natives of Poland. The authorities are obliged to forbid public prayers for the success of the French arms.... A Cologne dispatch dated yesterday says that Prussia and the North German Confederation have furnished 740,000 troops for the present war, and the States of South Germany 116,000. Of this grand total of 856,000 men, nearly all are now on French soil. They are expected to complete the conquest of France in a short Winter campaign.

Address of the French in San Francisco to the Provisional Government.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 31.—The French residents of this city have adopted and forwarded the following address to the Government for the national defense at Tours:

To the members of the French Government:

Considering that, by surrendering Metz, Marshal BAZAINE has committed an act of treachery unexampled in the annals of nations;

Considering that, in similar circumstances, to remain silent would imply complicity with the traitors and to declare ourselves disheartened.

We, French citizens at San Francisco, convened in general assembly, have passed the following resolutions:

1st. Marshal BAZAINE is a traitor to his country.

2d. The Republic alone can save France.

3d. Long live the Republic! Let us arise in arms and fighting for its independence is invincible.

4th. The following address shall be sent to the Government for the National defense.

Citizens: It is with the profound indignation that we have heard of the treachery of Marshal BAZAINE. But a Marshal of the Empire is neither the army nor the nation, and the French people must prove to the world that alone they are at the height of the time, to secure the victory and chastise the traitors. Yes, people, be united and have courage, and ye members of the Government, continue to carry high the banner of France. Resistance! Resistance! Resistance to the last! War to death! The French Republic cannot perish.

Vive la France! Vive la Republique!

The Central Committee of California will remit you, this week, 60,000f. for the National Defense.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 30.

For the General Assembly, the members of the Bureau: Pinet, Weill, Floche, Wolf, Vernard, Buffandeau, Petron, Bourzoine, Maurice, Avon.

Today the last opportunity will be afforded to attend this patriotic exhibition, and a large attendance may be expected. The gold singer's badge, which is to be disposed of, to one of the German vocal societies which received the largest number of votes cast by the visitors, it appears will be secured by the Beethoven Maennerchor, which at last accounts, in the number of votes, was ahead of the Arion and Liederkranz Societies.

The German Patriotic Aid Society of Elizabeth held a meeting at Washington Hall last evening. Speakers from Newark and New-York addressed the meeting. The fall of Metz gave sufficient cause for rejoicing, and the speeches were all full of hope. The tone of the sentiment of the meeting seemed to be, "War till surrender can be given that France will not again lift the sword against her conquerors."

The first speaker was JAMES BUCKLAND, who elaborated the quick transit to Harlem idea, and in regard to the kind of railroad to be adopted, wasn't particular whether it was an underground or an over-ground system. He was followed by JOHN MCDONALD.

Mr. FOLEY concluded the affair by stating that fifteen days after he received in Albany he would have a bill passed by the Legislature authorizing the fifteen-minute railroad.

The meeting adjourned to meet again on Friday next.

All Hallow Eve and All Saint's Day.

There are few times of festivity, celebration and rejoicing, better calculated to call forth all the sympathies, feelings and passions of our nature than "Hallow Eve." It is a time peculiarly adapted for manifesting almost every shade and variety of feeling. The young, the thoughtless, and the gay have ample scope afforded them for the indulgence of their frivolities. The experienced, sober and reflective go back as in a dream, over the years that are fled, and, as if by the wand of a magician, summon into apparent reality, many of those social scenes of merry making which they have enjoyed with dear friends in the past.

The celebration of the night should be observed with solemnity and devotion as well as with mirth and festivity, for such was the spirit in which it was instituted, and such is its literal signification, "All Hallow Eve" preceding "All Saint's Day." Today appropriate services will be held in all the churches, and all who possibly can should remember the important injunction, "Not to neglect the assembling of themselves together," particularly at a season replete with so many hallowed memories, and, therefore, so influential in calling forth the devotional sentiments of our hearts and spiritualizing our affections.

WASHINGTON COLLEGE

Gen. G. W. Lee Succeeds his Father as President—Name of the Institution Changed—Gen. Lee's Remains not to be Removed.

LEXINGTON, Va., Oct. 31.—At a meeting of the Board of Trustees of Washington College on Saturday, Gen. G. W. LEE, second son of Gen. R. E. LEE and Professor in the Military Institute, was unanimously elected to succeed his father as President of Washington College. Prof. PRATT, of South Carolina, was elected Professor of Applied Chemistry. The Board also changed the name of the College to the "Washington Lee University."

The family of Gen. LEE have come to the final and unalterable determination to let the remains of Gen. R. E. LEE lie where they are, in the chapel designed and erected by himself.

OFFICIAL CHANGES.

Testimonial to Gen. Cox on His Retirement—Farewell to Commissioner Delano at the Revenue Department.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—On the retirement of Gen. COX from the Interior Department, on Saturday, several hundred of the officials of the Department gathered to bid him good-by. The following letter was handed him, to which he made a brief response:

Hon. J. D. Cox, Secretary of the Interior:

DEAR SIR: As you are about to retire from the office of Secretary of the Interior, we cannot allow the official relations which have existed between us to be severed without an expression of the profound regard which we feel at parting from an officer whose administration has been so able, pure and upright, and whose personal relations with us have been uniformly marked with so much kindness and courtesy. We desire to testify to the great value of the advice and assistance which we have received from you in the administrative work of the Department, to the value of your orders and suggestions on behalf of civil service reform, and to the healthy and marked effect upon the public service of the adoption and enforcement of the principle of ability and capacity as a test of appointment, and of faithfulness and ability as a test for promotion, and as a security for tenure of office. The several interests under our control have constantly felt the invigorating effect of your presence and principles, and your supervising authority has uniformly been exerted only for the promotion of the public good.

Very respectfully, yours,

W. T. OTTO, Assistant Secretary of the Interior; JOSEPH L. WILSON, Commissioner General Land Office; SAMUEL S. PARKER, Commissioner of Pensions; H. VAN AMBURGH, Commissioner of Pensions; JOHN EATON, Commissioner of Education; FRANCIS A. WALKER, Superintendent Census; ELY S. PARKER, Commissioner Indian Affairs; SAMUEL A. DUNCAN, Assistant Commissioner of Patents.

The officers and employes of the Internal Revenue office, including the ladies, assembled yesterday afternoon in the room of the first deputy DOUGLASS to bid the outgoing Commissioner good-by. Mr. DOUGLASS, on behalf of those assembled, addressed Mr. DELANO substantially as follows:

Mr. DELANO: The ladies and gentlemen present have assembled to say good-by to you. In thus expressing our regretful feelings, we cannot but remember that our loss is your gain in the well-earned and honorable promotion which you go to enjoy. Your administration of the Internal Revenue Office has been so widely commended, and so signally successful, that words of praise, if appropriate here, would be useless. We know that that administration has been as pure as efficient, while your personal intercourse with us has been always considerate and kind. We cannot pay you a more fitting tribute in parting than by wishing you, in your new field of labor, great success and equal approval.

Mr. DELANO replied as follows:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN OF THE OFFICE: The word good-by in this world of change has frequently to be spoken, not always with grief, yet generally with regret. While it is with regret that I speak it to you today, I cannot but remember with pleasure the zeal, honesty and ability with which you have aided and sustained me in the performance of my duty. Though I have not frequently had the pleasure of meeting you all in close intercourse, still, with some of you the association has been certainly intimate. That intimacy has assured me that wherever our duty may call us in life, we will find able and worthy help in the line of duty; and I feel assured that in the future, as in the past, you will be agreeably associated in the performance of your duty. Providence has so ordered his laws that happiness and success must follow the faithful discharge of public and private obligations. In conclusion, ladies and gentlemen, allow me to express to you my earnest thanks for the courteous attention shown me on retiring from office, and I hope that throughout life you shall be happy and successful.

After this they all passed by him, shaking his hand and giving expression to much feeling.

The Consumption of Cotton in 1869-70.

From the Boston Advertiser, Oct. 31.

The report of the Statistical Committee of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers and Planters, prepared by Mr. B. F. NOURSE, of this city, shows for the whole country, for the year ending Oct. 1, an increase of 320,433 spindles, and an increase in the consumption of cotton of 17,310 bales, or 3,005,460 pounds. The following statement is based mainly upon returns made directly by the manufacturers, the comparisons of last year being taken where reports have not been received:

	Mills.	Spindles.	Bales used.
North	728	3,251,770	748,152
South	109	265,231	69,007
Used in cotton mills, but not for spinning	....	....	41,744
Used outside of cotton mills, as in woolen mills, upholstery, &c.	....	....	22,000
Totals, in 1869-70	837	7,114,000	831,504
Against, in 1868-69	844	6,793,507	864,304

Massachusetts stands now, as always, at the head of the cotton spinning industry of the country, having 122 mills, 32,149 looms, and 904,816 spindles, and consuming, in round numbers, 115,000,000 pounds of cotton. The Northern mills, having 6,851,719 spindles, produce yarn averaging in size No. 26⅞. A fair average product from all the mills upon that number of yarn is 4¼ skeins per day (of eleven yards). On ordinary years, 300 working days in the year should be reckoned, leaving sixty-five days for Sundays, holidays, &c. This year's work has been reduced, both by the long strike at Fall River, and by the loss of water power from the drought; so that no more than 250 working days can be counted for the average of all

OUR STEEL MANUFACTURES.

The Crucible Steel-Works at Pittsburg! Nature of Crucible Steel and Its Peculiarities—The Process of Its Manufacture—Comparison of English and American Steels.

From Our Special Correspondent.

PITTSBURG, Monday, Oct. 10, 1870.

The making of fine steel is probably the most difficult of the metallurgical arts. It required many years of slow growth, and innumerable failures, to develop into a system possessing the requisite exactitude of process and certainty of results now attained. Many of the arts involving chemical reactions have been reasoned out deductively; but, in the case of steel, the chemistry has been inferred inductively from experimental facts, and it is only within a few years that chemistry has begun to be of service in determining the validity of projected processes beforehand. The properties of this metal are contained within such narrow limits of the proportions in which iron and carbon are combined, that the first and foremost requisite is absolute exactitude in measuring these proportions. I cannot better illustrate this point than by quoting a fact well known to every man who entertains due regard for his morning toilet. Who has not experienced extreme difficulty and annoyance in obtaining a good razor? And yet how many men know how difficult it is to make a good razor, and what is the nature of the difficulties? They lie chiefly in the difficulty of making a steel which shall invariably possess the requisite qualities. After every possible precaution and effort, after the utmost that patience and care can do, there is still the probability that the workman has failed to reach that perfect exactitude which is demanded by this incorrible metal. Tool-steel is a very different article from those which we have heretofore had the pleasure of discussing in the TIMES. It is a more highly carburized metal, and therefore more brittle, harder, and possessing the tempering quality more decidedly than the Bessemer and Siemens-Martin steels, which belong to another class, and are suitable for very different purposes. It would, of course, be as useless in a railway as a Bessemer tool in a lathe. And yet there is every possible gradation between the hard, brittle stuff with which a burglar drills the sheeting of a safe, or an artilleryman spikes a gun, and the soft ductile steel used for boiler-plate and piano-wire; and all these gradations are determined merely by the proportion of carbon added to pure iron, which proportion in no case exceeds one and three-quarters per cent.

TRUE THEORY OF FINE CAST-STEEL.

The true theory of fine cast-steel is, to obtain first a pure wrought-iron, and then add the requisite quantity of carbon. There are, indeed, many methods called direct methods; that is, making steel from cast-iron, or even from the ore without taking the trouble of first making wrought-iron. But generally these methods do not pretend to make steels, whose properties are exact, or whose constitution is in all respects homogeneous. Such direct steels are used chiefly for grosser purposes, and though they are remelted, cast, and sold as good steels, yet they never pretend to superfine qualities. The road to such qualities lies invariably through wrought-iron, and this mode is alike most rational, and sustained by universal experience. Practice and theory are entirely conformable in this matter, as will appear. In removing the impurities of cast-iron it is never practicable to stop with certainty at the exact stage when the remaining carbon shall always bear a definite proportion to the iron. The surer way is to go on until the carbon is thoroughly eliminated, and then add a definite known quantity of carbon, which will be more likely to yield a steel of the desired quality. The steel-works of Pittsburg employ, for the most part, the surer method. The manufacturers of this City have succeeded by patient effort, great care and much intelligence, in rivaling at last the famous establishments at Sheffield, which for many years have supplied the world with the finer varieties of steel. It is certainly gratifying to know that this magnificent utilitarian art is not the heritage of any family, city, or nation, and especially gratifying to us, that Americans can produce a steel, not inferior for any purpose, to the best in the world. We have visited two representative establishments in this city. Messrs. ANDERSON, WOOD & Co., and Messrs. PARK BROTHERS, and our visit has been full of instruction. It would be impossible, in a single letter of moderate length, to describe all of the peculiarly interesting features of these establishments, and I shall merely notice a few which ought to be of great and general interest.

THE MATERIALS USED.

The first question which the expert would ask is, what are the materials used? The pedigree of a steel is a matter of the utmost importance, for it is impossible to make a good one out of a poor wrought-iron. Only those which are made from the noblest ores, and usually by charcoal smelting, are found to be sufficiently pure and reliable for the nobler steels. One obstacle to the rapid development of this industry has been the selection of the proper irons. In England many manufacturers use only the products of particular mines, (notably the Dannemora.) But in America good irons have lately become numerous, and there is every prospect that, with our unequaled abundance of excellent ores and fuels, the number will be further increased and the quality still improved, and it will hereafter be the fault of the steel-maker if we cannot surpass the world in this particular product. At Pittsburg many varieties of iron are used, but are all of the best.

THE "CEMENTING" PROCESS.

In order to carburize the iron to the degree requisite for tool-steel, which must contain one per cent. or more of carbon, it is "cemented." This process is effected in a large, conical oven, which contains, usually, two apartments, into which are charged the iron bars in the form of flats, about half an inch thick, disposed in layers which alternate with layers of powdered charcoal. The cementing boxes ("pots") are then closed with masonry, and subjected to a temperature of redness, and kept hot for six or eight days. When the test specimens, occasionally removed, indicate the completion of the cementation, the fire is gradually cooled off and the charge withdrawn. The bars have now become "blister-steel." They have absorbed a considerable quantity of carbon, which has completely changed their structure and properties. The fracture is gray instead of white, coarsely granular instead of fibrous; they are very brittle, and covered with little blisters. Although these bars are sometimes used for springs, files, &c., yet for the finer purposes they are wholly unsuitable.

MELTING AND CASTING.

They are not homogeneous, and must be made so by melting and casting. Preparatory to melting, the bars are sorted. The degree of carburization may be judged of approximately by the appearance of the fracture. The bars are broken into fragments, and if too highly carburized are diluted with wrought-iron. The proper mixture is weighed into crucibles containing seventy-five to one hundred pounds each. Much depends upon the excellence of the crucible. It must be made of the most refractory materials, and must be as free from silica as possible, depending for its refractoriness upon alumina mixed with graphite. It is provided with a well-fitted cover, and four of them are deposited in a small rectangular chamber and imbedded in coke. The heat is raised to the highest point practicable, and in about three or four hours the metal is ready for pouring. A crucible ordinarily stands three or four heats. At ANDERSON, WOOD & Co.'s the melting is done in a Siemens furnace, and with very great advantage. In the first place the fuel employed is of extraordinary cheapness, costing about sixty cents per ton. It would be impossible to describe the wonderful economy of this furnace more forcibly. In the second place, the heat is enormous and melts very rapidly; and thirdly, the crucibles endure on an average at least one charge more than in the common melting furnace. This item is an important one, since crucibles cost $2 75 apiece, and form one of the largest items in the cost of tool-steel. The chief objection just now to the Siemens furnace is the heavy royalty demanded by the patentees, amounting to $6 per ton of steel melted in it, and it can hardly be doubted that an abatement of this royalty would lead to a more extended adoption of it, or that the present one nearly consumes in most localities its whole economy. When the steel is thoroughly fused the crucibles are lifted from the furnace with tongs and carefully poured by an experienced workman into ingot molds or "chills." The ingot is generally small, consisting of the contents of one crucible. Large castings may readily be made by pouring the contents of any number of crucibles together, but in this country crucible steel is very sparingly used in large masses.

At KNUPP'S, in Essen, and at the Borchum Works, in Belgium, large castings of crucible low steel are made very extensively. But the general use of steel in Europe for heavy forgings, and the consequent demand for it for such purposes, is in strong contrast to the universal practice in America, which employs iron for innumerable purposes where steel would do, in comparably better. But there is little doubt that the skill and resources of American steel-makers will be fully equal to any demand which may be made upon them in the future, and there is no reason why they cannot furnish, ploughing, guns and the heavy running parts of machinery as well as Europeans whenever the consumer shall be pleased to demand them.

HAMMERING THE INGOTS.

The ingots for tool-steel are usually hammered under a Davy steam-hammer. They are heated to yellowness, and at PARK BROS.' almost to whiteness,—an unusual degree, since at that temperature the metal generally chills so rapidly that it is destroyed. But this excellent steel seems to be improved rather than injured by it. A large portion of the ingots are rolled into bars and flats. Rolled steel is thought to be less dense than hammered, but it is certainly more uniform in its mechanical structure. In drawing out the ingots ("welding") upon the narrow anvil every blow makes a shoulder, as it cuts into the softened metal, and a uniform bar is obviously impracticable, while in rolling a perfectly even pressure gradually applied cannot help giving a uniform texture. I strongly incline to the opinion that the advantages of hammered or rolled steel, over rolled, are imaginary and merely traditional, and the gradual increase in the proportion of the latter continued is, perhaps, indicative of a change of opinion on this subject.

PLATE-STEEL.

At PARK BROS.' considerable plate-steel is manufactured, and we were shown a sample of a plate folded quarto, and the folds hammered down without any appearance of cracking. Such plate would doubtless be unequaled for boilers, were it not so costly and difficult to make. The Siemens-Martin and probably the Bessemer will be able before long to yield a much cheaper plate-steel, and one not appreciably inferior in quality. Large quantities of plow-steel are also made in the Pittsburg establishments. This is not a crucible steel, but is puddled and afterward cemented to extreme hardness, but is not cast. The quantity produced annually is very great, amounting to more than 4,000 tons.

AMERICAN VS. ENGLISH STEEL.

The manufacturers who use American steel often complain that it lacks the uniformity of Sheffield steel. This complaint may be attributed, in a majority of cases, to the fact that two kinds of steel are seldom precisely alike in their behavior in the forge or smithy, and the workman who has been brought up in the use of a particular brand generally finds some difficulty in working a new article. It is habitual among smiths and most mechanics to "swear by" a particular brand, and any modification of its properties is sure to be detected as a defect, whereas a little ready adaptation of their own work and treatment of it would soon conquer the supposed irregularity. Still there is the possibility that the steel-maker may have changed his irons instead of adhering to a particular iron of known quality; as the English makers do, and this is sure to entail peculiarities upon the steel, which become obvious when worked up in the machine-shop and forge. The amount of steel made annually in Pittsburg is about twenty thousand tons, which is turned out chiefly by four establishments. There is every prospect that this product will rapidly increase, and ultimately displace foreign steels from the American market, with the exception of a few brands of the most special character. When the Western States shall have increased their manufacturing industry, as they certainly will, we may look for a corresponding increase in the use of American tool-steel. We go next to Cleveland, to visit the Bessemer works there, and to gain some idea of the prospects of the iron and steel industry on the great lakes and the comparative value of American Bessemer iron.

NEWFOUNDLAND.

How an Election is Conducted in that Island—The Defeat of the Colonial Secretary—The Discovery of a Silver Mine and Small Quantities of Gold—A Mining Expedition is Sent to Tilt Cove.

From Our Own Correspondent.

ST. JOHNS', Tuesday, Oct. 4, 1870.

Shortly after the last mail I left St. Johns for Trinity Bay to attend the late exciting contest between an Anti-Unionist and a Confederate candidate. The former was the Colonial Secretary of the new Government, and the latter, Mr. AMBROSE SHEA, who met with so signal a defeat during the memorable elections of last Fall. It will be difficult for your readers to fully realize the wholesale bribery and the many unlawful influences brought to bear against the interests of the Anti-Confederate Party in this island during the last year, and more particularly in the present election to create a furor in favor of the Dominionists of Newfoundland. I will ever remember with disgust the open prostitution of principle, the tyrannical coercion of the supplying merchants, and the utter servility to which the poor of Trinity Bay were reduced by those on whom they are dependent for their Winter's earnings. On the 3d inst. I arrived in Heart's Content, which is a portion of the electoral district of Trinity Bay, and the first object which attracted the attention of our party was a colossal placard containing the following bold announcement:

MEN OF TRINITY BAY:

Votes given to the Antis are thrown away, for the Government of Great Britain demand your assent to their wish in becoming a portion of the prosperous Dominion of Canada. If you persistently reject that wholesome alliance, your country will always remain as it is, impoverished and unprogressive.

Groups of fishermen and other inhabitants were gathered around this placard; some gaping at it with amazement, and others commenting in their own forcible terms on the purport of its contents. Asking an old fisherman near us what he thought of that mode of acting, he answered, with a woe-begone expression on his face, "They'd do anything they like wid us, that they would, I'll be bound, sa!" I next asked him how the political affairs had been carried on there during the preceding week. "Well, sa," he said, "the Governor's Secretary, a strip of a boy, stayed wid us all along, and some English officers, talking every evening on confederation. They had heaps of eating and drinking for all hands, and everybody was welcome to it. They were good to the poor, too, and I know many families that have got helped by them." Having received that information, we drove on toward the Transatlantic Telegraph Depot, where we expected to meet the "strip of a boy" and the English officers. On approaching the depot, we came up with a car loaded with flour, bags of bread, and kegs of rum and molasses. These were presents. They were informed by the driver of the car that "the Governor's men" had sent a lot of presents up to families living in the eastern end of the bay, "as the fishery had not been so good with them this season."

HOW MEN VOTED.

We arrived at the first booth in time for the commencement of the polls. After taking refreshments there we were surprised to find that the landlord would accept no payment, as his Honor the Governor's Secretary had made arrangements to have an "open house" there. The first vote entered was for "the Colonial Secretary and no Confederation." In spite of the immense bribery the votes continued to increase on this ticket until 5 o'clock in the afternoon, when we were astonished at the sight of leading merchants of Harbor Grace coming up the road from Trinity and Parnam Point with their respective gangs, whom they drove before them as sheep. Some of these men hardly knew what to do on being presented to the poll clerk, and many of them before registering their vote looked supplicatingly toward their merchant or other employers to have dictated to them what they were to do so that they would not make a mistake as to these men's wishes. From 5 o'clock until 8 no Anti-Confederate vote was entered, and at the close of the poll the return stood as follows: Anti-Confederation, 1,890; Confederates, 1,968. Judging from the extent to which bribery was used, and the little effort made on the part of the Anti-Confederates, who have still an overwhelming majority in the House of Assembly, we may confidently state that the feeling of the poor people of Trinity Bay is naturally opposed to their subjection to the Dominion of Canada.

THE ANNEXATIONISTS.

At the closing of the polls, Mr. ALLSOP, Ex-Colonial Secretary and the defeated candidate of the Anti-Union ticket, made a telling speech, in which he made the following remarks, which were unanimously hailed with loud cheers:

MY FRIENDS: Though we have been defeated in this district through the poverty and dependency of its people, yet the voice of all who are independent in Newfoundland is raised aloud in our favor. In other years, may Heaven grant, poverty will not rob you of your only privilege, when the proud stars and stripes of the land you love will protect your interests and afford to our dejected country the stimuli of progress and opulence which we have so long needed.

Mr. ALLSOP was then "chaired" to the landing stage, where the Anti-Confederate steam-tender, the Mary Austin, was at his disposal. He was accompanied on board by the sterling annexationist, Major RENOU, of the Old Volunteers, Dr. ADAM MCKENZIE, Mr. D. J. BAGON, and other leading members of the liberal profession and ardent annexationists.

On arriving in St. Johns the Mary Austin was enthusiastically received, though she had failed to reach Trinity Bay owing to Mr. ALLSOP being impounded by those who returned with him from Trinity, was escorted through the streets of St. Johns to his residence, where the crowd dispersed after giving him ninety hearty cheers. This will give you a faint idea of the force which the Home Government is determined to use against the Anti-Unionists of Newfoundland.

A SILVER MINE.

A mine containing large quantities of silver has been discovered near Tilt Cove, in this island. Several specimens of gold have been also found near the same place, and a party of miners, under the superintendence of Mr. J. POTTER, President of the Atlantic Telegraph Company in Newfoundland, will leave St. Johns on Monday next. I shall accompany the expedition and duly report its success. J. W.

NOTES FROM THE PEOPLE.

The Mayor's Carriage.

Hon. A. Oakey Hall, Mayor:

SIR: I received, today, through the post, a communication over your signature, dated Oct. 24, 1870, which is so extraordinary in its character that I cannot let it pass without reply.

You begin with the assertion that the Federal authorities are engaged in an attempt to prevent a "full" registry. If, by this, you mean a fraudulent registry, you are perfectly correct; but if you intend to assert a desire on the part of the Government to prevent legal registration, you are making a statement which you know to be without foundation, and are degrading your high position by making it subserve the purposes of political trickery, as disgraceful in its character as it is dangerous in its possible results.

You complain that you are disappointed in the population of the City, as shown by the late census, and allege that the census returns were purposely falsified. Why, then, did you not accept the proposition of the Marshal to appoint a joint committee to examine into the correctness of the census in those districts in which the greatest discrepancy exists, between the population as returned by the census and the vote cast in previous years?

You assert that the census does not show a population such as the rate of increase in times past would lead us to expect. But you fail to take into account the immense increase of population in the suburban towns during the last decade, and which is at the expense of New-York. As one among many examples, I can point to a town of three thousand inhabitants, in this vicinity, where, ten years ago, there was not a single residence. This town is peopled by New-Yorkers, largely influenced in the selection of an out of town residence by the excessive taxes levied by the Ring which governs New-York. Perhaps when you furnish your promised exhibit of the population of our City you will have appended to it the suppressed reports of the Controller, showing what has been done with the immense sums, the extortion of which is constantly driving our people beyond the City limits.

I have "the honor of the Metropolis at heart," and desire to see it assert "its proud title of being the first city in the Union;" but to do so its first step must be to crush the infamous combination by which it is now plundered, which is fast making it uninhabitable for all except the partisans of the "Ring." So long as a Ring Judge is sustained in bartering away every semblance of justice for the 25,000 votes controlled by the Company which retains him; so long as the head of the financial department is permitted to dispose of the public funds without even pretending to account for them; so long as the people are taxed to pay the cost of the trickery by which a Ring has been kept in power, (item: cost of printing and mailing circular from Mayor's office, dated Oct. 24, 1870;) so long as repeating and ballot-box stuffing render our elections a disgusting parody upon the theory of free government, we fear that New-York continue to decline in population and influence.

I shall, Sir, most assuredly register my name as you suggest. But it will be to add one to the number of votes which, I pray God, may be sufficient to break up this tyranny of organized corruption.

I sincerely trust that the time is fast drawing to a close when "the head of the local Government of the City of New-York" will stoop to give the sanction of his position to groundless slanders against the General Government as an electioneering trick. Such acts are sufficiently disgraceful when practiced unofficially, but when based on pretended official information inaccessible to the public, the abuse of position assumes an aspect of impudence which should arouse every citizen to the necessity of a stern rebuke at the polls.

Yours, with due respect,
LEXINGTON AVENUE.

A Correction—The Women Will Not Fight for the Ballot.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

In today's issue of your paper I find a letter from your "Special Correspondent," descriptive of the Rhode Island Woman's Suffrage Convention, and in which I am represented as having said that, if men did not give women the ballot they would take it by force of arms. The passage in my address, to which your correspondent alludes, was as follows:

"Thousands of men would fight for the enfranchisement of women today, were it made an issue; and, I doubt not, Joan D'Arc would be found to lead them on to victory."

As I have no intention of marching out at the head of a regiment of women to engage in sanguinary conflict, as a means of securing the ballot, I would like you to correct the mistake of "Essex."

Why the City Loses Population.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Every one is disappointed at the census returns of our City. Ought they to be so when they reflect on the number of people who have been obliged to leave it from necessity? and this class is on the increase. Houses are for sale or to rent in every street; whole rows are unoccupied near the Central Park, substantes costs four times as much as it does in Europe and in Montreal. We have boulevards and an excessively large park for the benefit of speculators, but scarcely any large markets or good docks for the encouragement of commerce. We have cliques and monopolies in ice, in milk, bread, marketing, street-openings, new pavements, altering street lamps, and they are growing. Four thousand dollars was sufficient to support a family handsomely, with a carriage; now it scarcely suffices for rent alone. The City tax is equal to the rent we formerly paid. A million for altering street lamps, is nearly the sum it requires to govern the town of Liverpool, with ten times our commerce. Our houses are taxed $225 for a wooden pavement, and the cost is about $50. Such a state of things did not exist between the years 1790 and 1860, and our foreign commerce, that which is essential to the growth of a seaport, is less now than it was in 1860. Montreal and New-Orleans are increasing their commerce at the expense of New-York. Liverpool has miles on miles of docks, crowded with ten times as much shipping as New-York, yet a twenty-five-foot house can be rented equal to $500 a year, or about the sum required for our City tax. Other expenses are in proportion. Our City lots grow in value, but not in revenue. Seventy-two lots are now considered cheap at a million and a half, yet they produce no more revenue now than they did in the year 1860, when they were sold for fifteen thousand dollars. It is quite clear to my mind that our City cannot increase in population if the present state of things is to continue. T. H.

Repeaters Outside of the City.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

I hear many Republicans speak in the highest terms of the able and energetic manner you are exposing the corruptions and plunders of HOFFMAN, his Judges, FISK, Jr., Tammany Ring and Ring Republicans. I hope you will continue the good work until the honest men of both parties compel them to an unconditional surrender of the important trusts they have betrayed and plundered so long. The Republicans in this State are looking on the contest in your State with a great deal of anxiety. We want to see the State secured for 1872, and to see you displace these robbers and their tool HOFFMAN. I received a letter a few days ago from a Tammany man, who said: "The Republicans may reduce our majority in this City, but we will make it up in the other cities throughout the State. This is not the only place where repeating can be used, and our leaders—Tweed, &c., know where to use them." Again he says: "The Republicans cannot get their men out to election, because they think there is no use going. We are working secretly, and will get a great of our vote, and of course will deny it." I write this to put you on your guard, and that you may be prepared for repeaters in other parts of the State. We elected a good Republican to Congress, and our Judge is this strong democratic district, but we worked hard for it, and that is the only way to succeed. Keep urging the importance of every voter attending the election, not only to vote but to work. Stir up the State Central Committee; let them stir up the county committees; let the papers devote as much space to political matters as possible, to make things red hot until after the victory is won. The TIMES is the smartest paper, and should be used. HOFFMAN must be defeated. Keep up the fire; push things, and compel an unconditional surrender. LUZERNE.

WILKESBARRE, Penn., Saturday, Oct. 29, 1870.

The Dangers Ahead.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Men of New-York! The time has arrived for us to make one grand effort to rid ourselves of the corruptionists of the Ring. We are glutted with the details of their crimes. We are fairly sickened with the repeat as furnished by the New-York World. Is our task a hopeless one? No! We are in condition today to deal TWEED & Co. a blow which will unsettle their entire combination for all time. Let us be stirring. Let us make one concerted effort to attain the rich prize of honest government. We must obliterate party lines for the moment. The question resolves itself into this: shall we have honest or dishonest men in office? It is better to give our support to an honest Democrat than to perpetuate the rule of the Ring. There is a point, resulting from misrule, not yet reached. With a Police Department in the hands of corrupt men, what security is there for life and property? If we meet this terrible question with indifference, we invite scenes of lawlessness and acts of crime among us, which will make all former times of corruption pale by comparison. We know that government is here diverted from its wholesome channels that men may grow rich by fraud and theft. How is it that the intelligence, the wealth, the Christian sentiment of this great community have less weight than ignorance and vandalism? Have we no interest in terminating political corruption? The time will come when it will present a more frightful aspect than now, and we will be compelled, on behalf of our lives and fortunes, to grapple with the issue. We are now satisfied to make our dollars; it will soon concern us to know how we can make them secure to us. It is not rash to predict that our homes and lives will be endangered by a continuance of Ring rule. Let every Tweed & Co. tremble. Let us fight with our ballots now. We have overthrown enemies to Republican government on the battlefield; are we not men enough to meet thieves and poltroons in the political arena, and there to beat them? DELIVERER.

NEW-YORK, Friday, Oct. 28, 1870.

CURRENT NOTES.

A woman named EARLY was fatally injured at Chicago, a few days since, by the explosion of a kerosene lamp.

Two respectable citizens of Toledo, Ohio, were drowned, on Saturday last, while duck-shooting near that city.

A fireman's monument will be unveiled at Forest Lawn Cemetery, near Buffalo, to-morrow. (Wednesday.)

A monster, at Cleveland, Ohio, last week, while in a state of intoxication, threw his child out of doors and beat his wife to death.

The Young Men's Christian Association Library of Chicago has been opened to all citizens, irrespective of membership of the Association, at $2 per annum.

A movement has been set on foot at Montreal, with the view of inducing the authorities to provide a public park for the inhabitants of that city.

During the present year 3,000 Scandinavian immigrants have been brought to the State of Mississippi through the agency of a Mr. BLECKFIELD.

Hon. J. S. MACDONALD, of Ontario, Canada, stated in a recent speech that his advanced age would soon compel his retirement from public life.

Two young people of Macon, Ga., of whom it was prophesied that their married life would prove one of continued misfortune if united in the light of day, recently aroused a Magistrate after midnight and had the ceremony performed by lamp-light.

There are at present in the Michigan University twenty-seven female students, fifteen of whom are students of medicine, and one of law. The law student is a Miss KILLGORE, of Indiana. Rather a suggestive name for a lawyer.

The Ottawa Free Press is compelled by a strong sense of duty to call public attention to the disgraceful state of the cemeteries in that city. The editor in passing through one of them recently saw a grave-digger throwing up a confused mass of bones, chips of skull, and faded flaxen curls!

In some of the localities of Chicago it is said that real estate has not advanced in price since 1868. Along the course of the lake property is in brisk demand. Lots on Prairie-avenue have recently been sold at from $350 to $400 per foot.

In answer to the question which has been so often repeated: "Will Indians work?" the Portland Oregonian says: "Yes; and so will Cloootchmen. Let the curious observe them at work today, women splitting wood, and Indians piling it up, at the corner of Fourth and Alder streets."

A clever Chicagoan, of magnificent appearance, who represented himself as the agent of a metallic roofing company, recently succeeded in procuring the signatures of several wealthy farmers in Ohio to blank promissory notes, which he subsequently filled out to suit himself, and had discounted. By this means he is supposed to have raised between $20,000 and $30,000.

In the Fifteenth District Court, of San Francisco, a suit was lately tried, in which a claim of $3,000 was set up by Rev. F. DILLON EAGAN against the Vestry of St. James' Church, of that city, for services rendered as rector of the parish at $250 per month. The Court ordered a non suit, on the ground that Bishop KIP, with whom he had contracted, had no power to bind the Vestry. The Judge said that his proper action would have been for what his services were worth.

At a missionary meeting held on Sunday night in Philadelphia, under the auspices of the Indian Hope Association, President GRANT's policy in inviting certain religious sects to take office as agents and overseers among the Indians was warmly commended. It was stated that a mission-house, chapel, school and hospital, all of the value of $20,000, had been built by the "Hope" since its organization, and that 600 red men had been civilized through the efforts of its officer, Mr. HINMAN.

A slander case was recently concluded at the Ontario, Canada, County Assizes, in which a Miss YORK sued her step-father, THOMAS KING, to recover damages for having prevented her marriage with Dr. MCKAY, of Beaverton, by concocting a story which seriously reflected on her character as a virtuous woman. In the course of the trial it was proven that KING had made a proposition of marriage to her himself, and that he had willfully slandered her so that she might be driven to accept him. The jury found a verdict for the plaintiff, and assessed the damages at $300.

Considerable excitement was occasioned among the colored people of West Fork, near Hamilton, Ohio, last week, by the refusal of the Principal of the public-school to teach their children with the white pupils. Three of the former took their places in the school-room, as if their presence was a matter of common occurrence. They waited patiently until noon, but the teacher having heard of their advent, remained absent himself until he had consulted with one of the trustees, at whose advice he subsequently sent them home. The end is not yet, however, for the colored voters of the district have determined on testing the matter in the Courts.

THE INFANTS' HOME.

A Worthy Institution—What it is Doing, and What it is Doing.

Among the charitable institutions supported by New-York charity, few appeal with stronger force to the sympathies of humanity than the organization, the name of which stands at the head of this article. Doubtless, one more which thoroughly its daily workings fully appreciate the end it is designed to and does accomplish; but yet the most casual observer can indorse what the managers tell.

The histories which could make our annual reports intensely interesting must be as silent as they are sad. They say: "We often feel that it is not alone our prayers which have brought God's favor on our work, but the sighs and prayers of penitent sufferers have been answered by the constant stream of heavenly blessing."

There have been two large additions to the building. The Asylum, corner of Fifty-first-street and Lexington-avenue, since its occupation for present purposes sixteen years ago, and the last annual report shows 371 children in its care, 106 of whom were born there, and the success of the lying-in wards has exceeded the most sanguine hopes of friends. To these some women—never without reference—come from poverty, some from shame and the world's cold scorn, for bodily and spiritual comfort and sustenance.

The interest of the State Legislature has been so awakened by representations of the Board of Officers that power has been accorded to take in many who from poverty and despair would have been driven to suicide or infanticide.

The histories and the mysteries of the place may never be written, as we have said before, nowhere as an example and epitome of all, the reporter might speculate as best might be on the was, joyless face of one young mother lying there recently, of whom nothing was known save invidiously to those in charge, if, indeed, there was a history, but the framed Scripture text at the head of her bed seemed a chapter of revelation to the visitor, reading: "Whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth; and scourgeth every son whom He receiveth."

We went to the children's school, for there is a school for such of the children as are large enough to attend, and neat copy-books were shown us with great pride by sturdy-looking boys, and little girls with roguish, happy faces. Their childish voices united in singing for our entertainment, too, and we were shown the first composition that had ever been written in the school—the chef-d'œuvre of little black-eyed BERTHA.

Who could think unmoved of these tender ones, rescued, perhaps, from the tyranny of a drunken father, from the breast, earlier, of an intemperate mother, giving thanks that here they were safe and happy. The annual charity ball, in behalf of the institution, has always met with brilliant success, but its necessities increase with its sphere of usefulness, and the provision of a quarantine establishment for contagious diseases has well nigh so quite absorbed the proceeds of the last entertainment, so that if subscriptions and donations should not be forwarded to the rescue the work of charity must be much curtailed. The officers for the present year are: Mrs. CORNELIUS DUBOIS, First Directress; Mrs. T. C. DOREMUS, Second Directress; Mrs. HENRY ARTHUR, Third Directress; Mrs. R. W. PETERS, Recording Secretary; Mrs. ABIGAIL S. SULLIVAN, Secretary; Miss R. B. HUNTER, Assistant Secretary. Among the active managers and honorary members are found the names of many that are "household words" where moral and physical want abound.

Permanent Organization of the Southern Transcontinental Railway Company.

The corporators elected by the Legislature of the State of Texas to organize the Southern Transcontinental Railway Company, in accordance with the provisions of the charter granted to them, met yesterday afternoon at the St. Nicholas Hotel and effected a final organization. The original projectors of the road were present in force, together with the President of the old El Paso corporation, Gen. JOHN C. FREMONT, and such well-known capitalists as Marshall O. Roberts, Mr. Wm. R. Travers, John Jacob Astor and Henry G. Stebbins, of New-York; J. Don Cameron, of Pennsylvania, and R. M. Bishop, of Ohio.

The meeting was very large, and the proceedings harmonious and interesting. Gen. FREMONT took the chair at about 12 o'clock, Mr. as first of the incorporators, under the Texas bill. Col. S. W. MORTON, of Kentucky, reported from a committee, previously appointed, that the first million of stock had been duly subscribed, and then the board of incorporators adjourned sine die. The stockholders then proceeded to ballot for directors of the Company, when the following gentlemen were chosen, by a full and unanimous vote:

Marshall O. Roberts, New-York; John C. Fremont, New-York; E. R. Hart, New-York; H. W. Tracy, New-York; Edward Worcester, New-York; W. R. Stewart, New-York; Amos Van Wart, New-York; J. W. Forney, Pennsylvania; J. B. Bowman, Kentucky; Geo. Maney, Tennessee; C. F. Holly, New-Mexico; R. M. Bishop, Ohio; J. W. Throckmorton, Texas; E. P. Gratton, Texas; C. H. Giddings, Texas; G. Stebbins, New-York; W. R. Travers, New-York; John J. Astor, New-York; Edwards Pierrepont, New-York; N. P. Banks, Massachusetts; J. Don. Cameron, Pennsylvania; Z. F. Smith, Kentucky; W. S. Sherrod, Alabama; M. C. Hunter, Indiana; S. W. Morton, Kentucky; W. M. Harrison, Texas; W. Clark, Texas; J. M. Tebbetts, Arkansas; E. W. Rice, Iowa.

After the announcement of the election, Hon. E. R. HART rose and nominated Gen. JOHN C. FREMONT, of New-York, as permanent President of the Company, which motion was seconded by Hon. John W. FORNEY, of Pennsylvania, who spoke of Gen. FREMONT in most complimentary terms.

Gen. FREMONT responded with much feeling, and said that taken wholly by surprise, he could not sufficiently thank his friend, Col. FORNEY, for the manner he had alluded to him; but while thanking his friends for the compliment they had paid to him, in asking him to preside over the permanent organization of this Company, he felt it, not only a duty, but a pleasure to ask them to confer the position of permanent President of the Southern Transcontinental Railway Company upon his friend, MARSHALL O. ROBERTS; he knew no more honorable name, the whole country, especially of the financial world, and judging by his wonderful success in the past, he felt that under his auspices this great enterprise is destined to a wonderful success in the future. Gen. FREMONT then put the question upon the nomination of MARSHALL O. ROBERTS as President of the new Company, and he was elected amid great applause.

Mr. ROBERTS took the chair and pledged himself to stand by the enterprise to the last. One of the dreams of his life had been to bring the North and South together in friendship and in union, and he believed that the Transcontinental Railroad was one of the surest means to that great end. The directors, after the unanimous election of Mr. ROBERTS, chose, with equal unanimity, Col. HENRY G. STEBBINS, as Vice-President; WM. R. TRAVERS, as Treasurer; JOHN D. DEBEVERE, as Secretary; and R. M. COWPERTHWAITE, as Attorney. The directors then adjourned until 5 o'clock in the evening, when they adopted their by-laws.

The Wilkes Libel—A Fine of $50 Imposed.

In the Court of Oyer and Terminer, yesterday, Messrs. BUSHBY & BRUCE, editors and proprietors of the Turf, Field & Farm, who pleaded guilty to the charge of libel on GEORGE WILKES, were sentenced by Judge INGRAHAM to pay a fine of $50 jointly. The Court then adjourned without day.

A Father Falsely Accused of Outraging His Daughter and His Family Broken Up by Catholics—He is Acquitted, and the Daughter Confesses to the Conspiracy.

The trial of WALTER SCOTT, a respectable citizen of East Newark, has been concluded in the Hudson County Court of Sessions by a verdict of not guilty. The evidence adduced at the trial was of the most remarkable character ever introduced in a court of justice, and completely vindicated the accused. He was charged with having outraged his own daughter, a girl ten years of age, and the girl who at her entrance into the witness stand gave the most positive evidence of her father's guilt, broke down completely at the last, while other evidence introduced by the defense served to show that a foul conspiracy had been hatched to the injury of the father of the possession of his children by throwing him into prison. What the object of this conspiracy was did not then appear, but a Jersey City paper, in its issue last evening, furnishes the solution in the statements of SCOTT and the reported confession of the girl. From this statement it appears that the object of the detected conspiracy was a desire on the part of the Catholic friends of SCOTT's deceased wife, who was herself a Catholic, to obtain possession of her children. Within two hours after SCOTT was seized and dragged to prison, a Catholic priest appeared at his house and baptized his children, afterward removing two of them to the Catholic Asylum in Orange, N. J. A third child was taken away, also without the knowledge of the father or his friends, and was placed in a Catholic family at Philadelphia, where she has been found since SCOTT's release.

The father now intends to commence suit against the conspirators for damages, and has already taken steps to secure their arrest upon a criminal charge.

HORRIBLE MURDER.

A Woman Beaten to Death in Camden, N. J.—Arrest of her Husband Charged with the Crime.

Camden, N. J., was thrown into a state of high excitement, yesterday, upon the circulation of a report that the County Jail, already so well filled with criminals charged with shedding human blood, had received another murderer, and that a weak, inoffensive woman, the prisoner's wife, was the victim whose life had been sacrificed.

On Sunday afternoon JACOB HILL, the proprietor of the hotel at the corner of Fourth and Market streets, had, if the suspicions of those best acquainted with all the circumstances are well founded, murdered his wife in cold blood. The circumstances under which the murder was discovered, and which caused the arrest of the husband, are as follows:

Late in the afternoon the step-son of Mr. HILL—Mrs. HILL's son by a former marriage—returned home from church and looked in the sitting-room for his mother. Not finding her, he asked his step-father to tell him where she was. HILL replied that she had left her in her bed-room, that she was tired, and would not get up for some time. The young man went immediately to his mother's room, being alarmed by the strange demeanor of his step-father, and called loudly to Mrs. HILL. The door was locked, no answer came, and finally he broke in the door and entered. Upon the floor, his mother lay dead. Her face was dreadfully bruised, and one of her heads broken. The position in which she lay, and the situation of the articles of furniture about the room gave evidence of a violent struggle. The door had been locked from the outside, no key being found in the room. Thus the proof appeared to be strong to the son that his mother had been brutally murdered, and the assertion of the step-father, together with the knowledge of the fact that the murdered woman had, for a long time, been brutally treated, left but little doubt on the young man's mind as to the identity of the assassin. He immediately left the house, and procuring the services of Constable KING, had HILL arrested on the spot. The body of the unfortunate woman was then removed to another room, after Coroner BARBER with a jury had inspected the condition of the room and the surroundings. The Coroner commenced his inquest last evening, but it was not thought that it would be completed for some time. The prisoner is a middle-aged man, well known in Camden, where he has always resided.

Methodist Episcopal Preachers' Association—How to Preach the Gospel.

At the meeting of the Methodist Episcopal Preachers' Association, yesterday, the discussion of the subject introduced last week, in regard to the necessity for more thorough preaching of the fundamental doctrines of Christianity, was continued. Rev. Dr. ADAMS opened the debate, and showed wherein evangelical Christian ministers were playing into the hands of non-evangelicals by ignoring almost wholly the doctrines of the Trinity, the divinity of the Lord Jesus Christ, the atonement, repentance, &c., and devoting their time to science, falsely so called. A thorough acquaintance with the moral status of a congregation is considered necessary to a proper and complete presentation of the truth by any minister.

Rev. Dr. BUTLER owed whatever success he has had during his thirty years' ministry to the simple mode which he adopted of taking a text which might impress itself upon his mind either in prayer or in reading the Scri for to the Stonington, Old Colony and Narragansett lines that make their landings on the North River side of the City at piers Nos. 27, 30, 33 and 34, which it is proposed shall hereafter be landing places on the east side. To furnish these will, of course, necessitate much expense on the companies in question, and will be the means of putting up water frontage property on the east side at much higher rates than it will otherwise affect. It is proposed that Corlears Hook shall be the southern limit beyond which these steamers must not come. It is contended, however, that the proposal, if carried into effect, will work great injury to commercial matters, besides being of no practical benefit. The steamer owners aver that the freight that is intended for Western transportation from the East, or vice versa, can only be handled with facility, by leaving the steamers to land where they do now, and the extra expense for carting goods across the City, if the East River were designated as a terminus for these steamers, would prove to be a serious drawback in a commercial point of view. There will doubtless be another attempt made at the ensuing session of the Legislature to pass this proposed law. The owners of the steamers insist, however, that they will test the constitutionality of the act.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT—NORTHERN DISTRICT.
Before Judge Hall.

BANKRUPTCY CASE—APPLICATION OF CREDITOR AGAINST ASSIGNEE.

A petition was filed at this Court by Messrs. Cooper, Vail & Co., of this City, for the purpose of obtaining an injunction in the Troy Woolen bankruptcy case, and for an order revoking the assignee, and the setting aside of the sale of the assets, consisting of two large mills and machinery, twenty dwelling-houses and stores, and a hotel, located at Troy, of the value of $200,000 and upward.

The petitioners are creditors of the Company to the amount of $67,000, and claim that the Company is identified with the firm of Knowlson & Morgan. They allege that the bankrupt property was sold pretendedly at auction, but without bona fide competition or proper notice, in an improper manner, for $40,000, to one Filny M. Corbin, not for himself, but for R. Miller, J. H. Rogers, D. Cowee, R. H. Thurman, E. Barker and Sheppard Tappen, assignee, for their benefit, creditors and that of the corporation of which they might be officers, or persons whom they represented, being a portion of the creditors of the Troy Woolen Company; that previously to the sale they, the petitioners, offered the assignee $104,000 for the property, but the sale was made without their knowledge or notice to them, and, as they claim, by collusion of the parties interested in the purchase, and with intent to deprive the other creditors of their rights.

Application was presented on the 20th of October prohibiting the assignee from transferring, disposing of, or incumbering the property. The 29th of November was assigned for hearing the application for removal of the assignee, and the application to set aside the sale.

SUPREME COURT—TRIAL TERM—OCT. 31.
Before Judge Ingraham.

A HEAVY STOCK CASE—ACTION FOR DAMAGES FOR REFUSAL TO TRANSFER.

The Mechanics' Banking Association vs. The Manhattan Company.—This is an action to recover damages laid at over $200,000, for the refusal of the defendant to transfer to plaintiff 472 shares of stock of which plaintiff was owner. It appears that the certificates of stock were originally issued in the name of John H. McDowell, by whom a power of attorney was executed in blank and attached to the certificates. These stocks, with other securities, were hypothecated by McDowell with F. P. Dibble & Co., bankers, of House & Macy for $200,000, from whom they were subsequently redeemed by the parties hypothecating them, Dibble & Co. receiving back one hundred of the shares transferred to Dibble & Cambles, and the balance to P. & F. Jourdan, sent them to the Company for that purpose, from whence they were returned with the blank power of attorney filled up with the name of the Company's transfer clerk as the attorney to make the transfer. Subsequently, plaintiffs becoming the owners of the stock, applied for a transfer, presenting at the same time Messrs. Dibble & Cambles and P. & F. Jourdan to receive the transfer under the power of attorney, and then retransfer to plaintiffs. This was refused, the Company giving as the reason that it was restrained by injunction, and, under the instructions of its lawyer, would make no transfers.

Defendants set up not only that they were so restrained by injunction from the demand being made, but also that it is a matter of law that the transfer clerk being the only authorized person under the power of attorney to make the demand for a transfer, and he never having made such demand, the Company was not liable.

The cause will be summed up on Saturday next.

John E. Burrill and E. W. Stoughton appear for Plaintiff; Wm. M. Evarts and David Dudley Field for defendant.

SUPREME COURT—CHAMBERS—OCT. 31.
Before Judge Cardozo.

UNCONSCIONABLE TESTIMONIALS.

Mary Agnes Cantrell vs. Samuel Cantrell.—This is an action by the wife against the husband to obtain a decree of separation, on the ground of cruel and inhuman treatment. The case was sent before a referee to take testimony. The plaintiff obtained a judgment by default before the referee on Thursday last, which default defendant now seeks to open. A number of affidavits were read on behalf of plaintiff, showing the cruel treatment complained of; among other acts, that the defendant had abused plaintiff by beating and pushing, and pressing his knee on her bosom from 1 until 4 o'clock in the morning, and had thrown a pitcher of water over her on one occasion.

Affidavits were also read on behalf of defendant, to the effect that plaintiff was a witness of quick temper, and very grateful for the opposition; that she would have some days discontinued the action but for the advice of her attorneys, who, even after a reconciliation had taken place between the parties, and plaintiff desired to continue her suit, that he was prevented from answering by the advice of plaintiff's attorneys, who said all would come out right if he would keep still; that he did not know of the referee's intimated nearly all, the testimony was in; that some of the answers given by witnesses before the referee were put into the mouth of the witnesses the witnesses subsequently swearing that his testimony had not been properly taken down. It was further stated that defendant had nine affidavits of respectable persons showing his peaceable disposition and affection toward his family, while the plaintiff had been brought up in a much peaceable and very nervous and very excitable.

Counsel for plaintiff insisted that if the default were opened the defendant must pay the costs.

Decision reserved.

SUPERIOR COURT—SPECIAL TERM—OCT. 31.
Before Judge Jones.

ACTION TO REMOVE A TRUSTEE.

Frederick R. Schettler, Administrator, &c., vs. Laurence Shuster Smith, Trustee of the estate of John Jones.—This action is brought by plaintiff, who claims an interest in the estate of John M. Smith, to have the defendant removed from his position as trustee. Plaintiff sets forth in his pleadings, as the grounds of his right of action, that defendant has received from the estate, principal and interest, from the sale of the real and personal estate of which he is trustee, and at the same time holds under his control large and worth of real estate; that he has invested in the business of his firm all that has been realized from the sale of the trust property, without any additional security; that he has violated his trust, and that the trust funds in his hands are in danger of being lost. Defendant does not deny the use of the money in the business of his firm to the amount of $185,000; but claims that his firm is doing a prosperous cash business, that it has a capital invested of $150,000 and that he personally is worth $75,000. This was substantially the testimony in the case.

Judge Jones took the papers and reserved his decision.

A. Stickney for plaintiff; A. J. Vanderpool for defendant.

MONDAY, Oct. 31—P. M.

The regular Treasury programme in regard to Gold sales and Bond purchases during November was officially announced this morning. One million Gold will be sold every Wednesday, making a total during the month of $5,000,000, while on every Thursday one million of 5-20s will be taken, making a total of $4,000,000. The reduction in the Bond purchases, which during October were $8,000,000, excited some surprise, particularly as the Department has still a large currency balance, and as the trade requirements for currency, in connection with the crops, during November, are unusually large. The coming month is likely also to witness an exceptionally active movement in grain, which has been held back this year from extraordinary causes. As usual, the Secretary reserves the right to deviate from the regular programme, and his discretion in the matter will undoubtedly be wisely exercised. It is not reasonable to expect that the internal revenue receipts will, during the remainder of the year, be as large as during the past few months, which consideration may have influenced the Secretary, in abundance of caution, not to bind the Department to take a larger amount. The offerings of money today to borrowers on call were large, and the fair quotable rates were 5 and 6 ⅌ cent., although, in the afternoon, many loans were made at 4. The currency movement is still unimportant, although the rates of exchange at the Southern money centres point to an early demand on this City. The same is true of Cincinnati, while at Chicago the movement of the past week has been rather toward New-York. Mercantile paper is in only moderate supply in the open market, and prime double-named passes readily at 7½@8 ⅌ cent.

The Gold Room speculation has been weak today, and the price on extreme quotations has ranged from 111⅛@111⅞, the higher figures having been made early in the day. Although there have been some large orders to sell in the market, yet the volume of business has not been large. The supply of gold continues below the wants of borrowers, who today paid for the use of Gold 3 and 6 ⅌ cent. per annum, 1-64, 1-32, 3-64 and 1-16 of 1 ⅌ cent. per day. The Assistant Treasurer today paid out on account of the November interest $313,912 50, making a total thus far of $4,188,206 50. None of the 1871 bonds were presented for prepayment. The Foreign Exchanges continue firm, notwithstanding the high borrowing rates which rule for cash Gold. The leading drawers ask 109⅞ for sixty-day bills, and 110 for short sight. Sales have been at 109½ and 109¾@⅞ respectively. Good bankers' bills are about one-eighth under these rates. Commercial bills continue scarce, and bankers are paying as high as 109 for the best, while inferior grades command 108⅞. Commercial documentary bills are quoted 108¼@⅞.

The Public Funds have been dull, with the market somewhat depressed in tone on account of the small amount advertised to be bought by the Treasury during November. In State Bonds there has been almost an entire absence of business, the only recorded sales at the Board having been small lots Virginias (old, registered) at 50½, and of Missouri 6s at 91½. In City Securities Brooklyn 6s Water Loan sold at 95 in the morning, and a small lot at 94 in the afternoon. For Central Pacifics there was a good investment inquiry, which advanced the price at the close to 21 ⅌⅞. Rock Island 7s sold at 97½, and Michigan Southern Sinking Fund Bonds at 101½. City Bank Shares have been nominal.

There has been a strong feeling in the Railway speculation today, and, with occasional reactions, prices on the General List have advanced from ½ ⅌⅞ of 1 ⅌ cent. The features have been Lake Shore, New-York Central and Hudson, Reading, North-west Preferred and Wabash. Western Union and Pacific Mail have been the strongest and most active of the Miscellaneous List, the rise in the first named having been 1 ⅌ cent. Express Stocks have been firm and dull. Among Investment Shares we notice sales of Delaware, Lackawanna and Western at 108¾@109¼, of Burlington and Quincy at 151 and of Fort Wayne at 90¼.

The following quotations were made, as compared with Saturday night:

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE WAR.

The Germans around Paris yesterday held solemn religious services, and the bombardment opens today according to a Versailles telegram. Another dispatch from the same source says the sovereigns of the South German States have been invited to witness the bombardment. On the 28th of October an outpost of the besieging army at Le Bourget, on the northern side of Paris, was carried by the French and occupied and fortified by them, but in the evening they were dislodged after a "hot and brilliant" fight and driven into their own fortifications, with the loss of thirty officers and 1,200 men captured by the Germans. Advices by way of the Prussian head-quarters, said to be from French prisoners, represent the rations of meat in the fortifications as reduced to half a pound twice a week, and that women and children approach the Prussian lines, although warned that they will be shot, and seem to invite death in that manner in preference to starvation in the city. All communication with the city is rigidly prevented. The railway from Chalons to Paris, by way of Soissons, has been restored, and is used by the Germans for transporting.

A Tours telegram says the Perfects and military commandants, in many Departments, have expressed indignation at the surrender of Metz, and a determination to continue the war to the last extremity. Great agitation and wild rumors prevailed in Tours over the surrender. A paper published at Versailles says M. THIERS' mission to the King of Prussia will prove fruitless. Official circles in Vienna believe that as Prussia demands a cession of territory, the war must continue for an indefinite period. A patriotic demonstration was held in Marseilles on learning the surrender of Metz. Public places were closed and meetings held.

Gen. BOURBAKI has taken the command in the north, and has addressed a proclamation to the soldiers, presenting the task which the surrender of Metz imposes upon them. He announces his intention to form a well-appointed corps d'armée to operate in relieving the besieged fortresses. A London telegram says small-pox has broken out in Amiens, introduced by fugitives from Paris. A detachment of 6,000 men from the armies recently about Metz has been sent to invest Longwy. The siege of Phalsbourg continues languidly, the tactics being to starve out the garrison, whose stores, according to a London telegram, are beginning to fail. A body of Prussians 12,000 strong are reported to have occupied Dijon after a bombardment which began at 9 A. M. on Sunday and continued until nightfall. The place is not fortified.

The Polish Jews have manifested much sympathy for France. The Russian authorities are obliged to forbid public prayers for the success of the French arms. A dispatch from Tours says Mme. GAZAINE left that city on Sunday evening. Prussia and the North German Confederation contributed 740,000 soldiers, and the South German States 116,000, in the present war. Nearly all this force entered France.

Register, Register, Register!

We appeal once more to honest men of all parties not to lose their last opportunity of qualifying themselves to vote on the 8th inst. We can carry this election, if the classes which usually are apathetic can be induced for once to use their votes. Remember the inducements that are offered to you to exercise your political privileges. Gen. WOODFORD is an honest man, who will not degrade our Courts of law by putting Judges on the Bench to "sell justice for a price." If you give another two years of power to HOFFMAN, TWEED, FISK, and that gang, all the evils we have undergone in the past will not compare with those which will be forced upon us. There is nothing to be hoped for from the Democratic Party. Even men like Mr. BELMONT now preside over meetings at which JAMES FISK is the principal speaker. The Tweed gang have spread corruption far and wide—and they will proceed to greater lengths than ever if they are not checked. Now is our only opportunity. The State will give us a full vote. Let us only do our duty in the City, and the evening of the 8th will find HOFFMAN a defeated and disgraced candidate, and a citizen of good character placed at the head of the State.

The Tweed faction read their approaching doom. Their efforts to suborn the Republicans have failed, except in notorious instances. The Republican morning papers have been true to the cause, although so-called "Democratic" newspapers have taken the Tammany bribes. Even in the cases of these journals, the defense of the Ring has been intrusted to nerveless and incompetent hands. In the interior of the State, all the ablest journals are cordially echoing the appeals of Republicans here. There is no apathy among our friends outside the City. This, then, is the time to strike. Republicans can conquer, if they will, notwithstanding foes without and traitors within the camp. Let us at least make an effort worthy of the crisis. Let it not be said that, at a time like the present, nothing could induce the people to protect their own interests. If we must lose the election—which is now scarcely probable—let our minority be so slight as to convince everybody that we shall succeed next time. But we cannot lose, if we are only true to ourselves. Let the corrupt Republicans prate on about their personal squabbles, or continue to do the work of Tammany Hall while pretending to criticise the journals of their own party. Let the weakest of Democratic writers do their best to convince people that black is white, and white no color at all. What the honest citizen has to do is to vote for WOODFORD and LEDWITH, and against HOFFMAN—or in other words, against TWEED, FISK, and SWEENY. For this purpose, you must [illegible] the [illegible] to do this, the worst traitors Tammany and his gang can devise will be a punishment far lighter than you deserve.

The Stories of Prussian Cruelties.

There is, perhaps, nothing more pitiful about war than the way in which the supplementary work of blackening each other's reputation is carried on, amid the clash of arms, by the combatants, through the newspapers. This means of offense has been added to the armory of civilized warfare, curiously enough, by the growth of humane feeling, and the spread of the sentiment of human brotherhood. When TILLY stormed Magdeburg, and his men, after violating the women, killed everybody of every age and sex they could lay hold of, neither he nor they were at all desirous of having the fact concealed. In fact, they wanted the news of it spread far and wide, so that the terror inspired by it might save them trouble on like occasions afterward. When TURENNE laid waste the Palatinate, the last thing that occurred to him or his master was to feel ashamed of it. In those days, the great aim of every warrior was to show as many evidences as possible of his power, and as long as he did this successfully, he cared little about charges of cruelty, and indeed, would have laughed at anybody who took the trouble to bring them. The soldier was expected to have a touch of ferocity in his disposition, and to be only kept from massacres even in time of peace by rigid discipline.

Now, however, all this is changed. The soldier has to be gentle, as well as brave. Plunder, not to speak of the slaughter, of the unresisting, has come to be looked at as a great stain on the reputation of an army. Soldiers are expected to respect private property on the march, and what they take, to take in an orderly and quasi-legal manner, under cover of a "requisition." It is a point of honor with a General to see that women, who fall within the sphere of his operations, are held harmless, and that no wanton devastation is committed in the territory through which he passes, even though it be the enemy's territory. Occasionally, of course, devastation is formally and designedly committed, but always with much lamentation over it as a painful military necessity. This state of things has furnished belligerents with means of damaging each other they never enjoyed in the good old days, and they avail themselves of those means with ludicrous diligence. It is, of course, impossible to guess what TILLY would have said if he had been denounced as a savage by hundreds of newspapers; but the probabilities are that, his morality remaining what it was, he would have enjoyed the notoriety. Commanders in our day, and the nations which employ them, are grown thin-skinned, in proportion to the increase of publicity by which all deeds, both of peace and war, are surrounded, and accordingly we find stories of "atrocities" committed by the enemy's troops now a very favorite weapon of warfare. During the rebellion the Southern newspapers teemed with accounts of Northern lust and ferocity, beginning with BEAUREGARD'S "Beauty and Booty" anecdote. There were few Southerners who were not firmly persuaded, on the authority of multitudinous editors, and persons who had visited New-York and Newport in the Summer season, that the plan of the Federal Government was to fill its regiments with the dregs of the population from the great cities—thieves, bullies, and gamblers and murderers, and then let them loose on the peaceful, simple, unsophisticated inhabitants of Southern villages and plantations. As the war went on, awful things came to light every day, showing the tigerish disposition of the Northern troops, such as the surrender of the town in Tennessee to the troops for two hours, during which the inmates of a ladies' boarding-school were subjected to unmentionable outrages.

During the Indian mutiny the Sepoys were served up to the English public in the same way. Nothing was rarer then for Englishwomen to escape outrage followed by public mutilation, in the midst of a crowd of rejoicing fiends, and people in England were only disabused of this belief by the failure of any of the victims of the mutilations to make their appearance. At first it was said, that the persons who had had their noses and ears cut off, and their tongues cut out, were ashamed to show themselves, but at last even this excuse for them ceased to be heard, or only excited a laugh. In the Italian war of 1859, the Austrians were handsomely reviled for their brutalities. They shot villagers without the smallest provocation, and otherwise reveled in cruelty. The Austro-Prussian war of 1866, did not last long enough for the Prussians to display their character in Bohemia, but they are making a fearful exposure of their real nature in the present conflict. The burnings, robberies, rapes, desecration of churches, with which they are charged by the French newspapers, are really enough to make angels weep, and would, if all true, show them to be fiends incarnate. The Prussians in the early days of the struggle, expended their ingenuity in this line on the Turcos, who, though doubtless unscrupulous barbarians, were certainly made responsible for ten times the number of murders of wounded men, and ten times the number of insults to hospital nurses, they ever committed.

Much as one may regret the amount of mendacity expended in this line of operations, it is satisfactory as revealing the steady growth of the power of public opinion over the most powerful and most excited belligerents. No matter what victories BISMARCK may win, or how hopeless the situation of the French may be, he acknowledges every day that he is responsible to somebody yet more "august" than his "august master"—and that is, the public opinion of the civilized world—and that, even after the vanquished have fired their last shot, they are not wholly defenseless. His frequent circulars are all so many appeals to the judgment of mankind for the justification of acts which he knows superiority of force alone would not suffice to justify. The French lies about the [illegible] Turcos, though less [illegible] and less formal, are also either as many attempts to resort to the same great tribunal, for the decision of questions which the sword, no matter how deftly wielded, must leave unsolved—or to get, on one side or the other, a power which, though it may seem of little consequence on the battle-field, is what gives victories their fruits, and makes defeat hopeless.

Shall the Hoffman Usurpation be Ratified?

The people of this State have been living nearly two years under the reign of an usurper. The tenure by which Gov. HOFFMAN has held and still holds, his office, has no more legal, and far less moral, foundation, than if he had been placed in the Gubernatorial chair by the bludgeons of his followers. The evidence in support of this statement is abundant and incontrovertible. It was fully substantiated by sworn testimony before the Congressional Committee appointed to investigate the election frauds in this City, and it is, at this moment, a matter of record, on file in the offices of the very men who engineered the frauds. Out of the forty thousand naturalization papers issued from three Courts of this City in 1868, there are a sufficient number that show, on their face, evidence of fraud to offset the entire majority which Gov. HOFFMAN was declared to have received throughout the State. All this, independent of the repeating and false counting of votes in that election, of which there is equally abundant proof. Nor were those frauds unknown to Mr. HOFFMAN, either before or after the election. He was fully cognizant of them at the time they were being perpetrated, and, in his official capacity as Mayor of this City, did all he could to insure their success by issuing a proclamation on the eve of the election, which for audacity and mendacity surpassed the "proclamations" and "circulars" of his successor, Mayor HALL, in the present canvass.

It is greatly to be regretted that the resolutions adopted by the Union League ten days after the election in 1868, in which that body recommended Mr. GRISWOLD to contest the right of Mr. HOFFMAN to his seat, were not acted upon. Had they been, the people of the State would, in all probability, have been spared the manifold evils and the scandal that have followed in the train of the Hoffman usurpation. They would have been spared the infamous Erie bill, the attack on the jury-box in the interest of ballot-box stuffers and repeaters; and the corruption and degradation of the Judiciary, by which justice, either civil or criminal, has come to be, like our elections, an utter farce in this City. These, and many other evils, political and social, might have been avoided had our leading citizens and public men shown resolution and firmness two years ago, and resisted, through legitimate channels, the final consummation of the frauds which they all knew had been practiced upon them.

Through apathy or timidity, the golden opportunity was allowed to pass, and the question now comes up for the people of this State to decide: whether by their votes in 1870 they will sanction and perpetuate the usurpation of 1868; whether JOHN T. HOFFMAN, who has been forced upon them as Governor for two years by fraud, shall be their deliberate choice for Governor two years longer. Even if his record as Governor had been without spot or blemish, we maintain that every good citizen in the State, whatever may be his politics, should oppose his reelection by all legitimate means. Only thus can the iniquity by which HOFFMAN was foisted into an office against the wishes of a majority of the people of the State, be emphatically rebuked. Whoever votes for HOFFMAN on the 8th of November next will sanction successful fraud, and encourage future attacks upon the very foundation of our liberties—the purity of the ballot.

The Best Men to the Front.

The proceedings of the County Convention, on Saturday evening, were not needed to remind the earnest, honest Republicans of the tricks and trials they will have to endure during the process of party reorganization. While the indignation kindled by the audacious frauds and treachery of Tammany's agents is at its height, there is little real danger. The great majority of the party realize the baseness of the influence which has made Republican zeal tributary to Democratic success. For the time, at least, there is little further danger to be apprehended from this source. But the excitement will subside somewhat when the election is over, and then will come hypocritical appeals for a general fraternization. We shall be exhorted to "let by-gones be by-gones," and so to modify the plan of party reorganization as to open the door afresh to men who are now doing their utmost to elect the Tammany ticket. It is in view of this contingency that the proposal to adopt the reforms to be wrought specially "for the purposes of this campaign," has a suspicious significance. There is still a necessity for vigilance to ward off the perils of treachery during the remaining days of the campaign; but the real uses of reorganization are in the future.

The dissensions of the party in this City have been a scandal and a nuisance to the party throughout the State. They have fomented bad feeling, disgusted and repelled good men, and paralyzed the efforts of rural Republicans. The endeavors of successive Conventions to heal the differences and promote healthy local action, have invariably ended in nothing, and always as a result of the selfishness and bad faith of the men who cling to the party,—not for its principles, nor as a means of promoting pure and efficient government, local or national, but as an agency for the acquisition and distribution of patronage and plunder. These mercenaries have contrived so to play into each other's hands that they have made themselves the masters of the party,—shaping its policy, controlling its rewards, and denouncing as a traitor every man who refused obedience to their decrees. They have [illegible] conscience, have occupied [illegible] in the State Conventions, and have been recognized everywhere as entitled to positions among the leaders. Downright impudence has contributed largely to their importance, but only radical defects in the local organization could have enabled them to acquire the power they have wielded for the furtherance of their own purposes. They have talked red-hot Republicanism while in the secret service of Tammany. They have claimed from the Administration the distribution of local patronage, while pursuing a course which rendered Republican success all but impossible.

Now, the value of the general upheaval at present in progress is, in good part, that the tactics of the mercenaries are exposed, their treachery is made notorious, their devotion to the interests of Tammany is placed beyond doubt. Hitherto, there has been no conclusive test. Loud professions have been accepted as a substitute for principle. Disguise is now impossible. The knaves are branded. And one of the legitimate objects to be served by reorganization is their exclusion from all opportunities of participating in management. They will be at liberty to vote the Republican ticket, if they choose, but the door that leads to committees and conventions must be closed against them.

The real purpose of reorganization is not only to reduce to the ranks treacherous occupants of positions in themselves honorable, but to prevent the exercise of corrupt influences in the future by bringing to the front the best members of the party. To rid the party of knaves is a good work; but to make it complete, matters must be so managed that trustworthy men shall control the organization, and be accepted throughout the State, and at Washington, as the exponents of local Republican opinion. A culpable indifference to public affairs has undoubtedly had something to do with the non-appearance of this class in our committees and conventions; but this result has also been in some degree produced by the prominence accorded to mere mercenaries, who have been allowed to take possession of everything and to elbow good men out of the way. If, however, this reform is to be rendered permanent, the idea of constructing plans "for the purposes of this campaign" only, must be discarded. We must look far beyond next Tuesday. A great deal is to be done between now and sunset on that day; but whatever the result at the polls, the necessity for reorganization on a broad, bold and enduring basis will remain unchanged. Defeat should but stimulate us to adopt measures that will more completely crush Tammany's emissaries in our midst, and more fully develop Republican strength. On the other hand, success should induce us to prepare for other conflicts by enlisting the character, the enterprise, and wealth of the City in the Republican service. That is the end to be kept before the party in prosecuting the work of reorganization.

The Discipline of Torture.

Considering the distressing increase of juvenile crime all over the country, we have sometimes thought it advisable to utter a word of remonstrance against that pernicious indulgence and false humanity which, flouting the wisdom of Solomon, seems, in our country at least, too often responsible for the unnatural wickedness of our youth. When the most atrocious offenses are committed by children, of an age which unites itself in our minds only with notions of innocence and guileless purity—when babies chop off each other's heads by way of pastime—and when, as was the other day discovered in Iowa City, an organized band of boy burglars, the eldest not sixteen, are able to operate with such skill and daring as to make themselves for weeks the terror of a community, it seems as though our educational discipline might be increased with advantage. Not many who have had much to do with the instruction of the young will agree with Dr. REID's assertion, in his "Inquiry into the Human Mind," that lying, for instance, is an outgrowth, a fungu, so to speak, of the reason, and that "children keep to truth invariably" until they arrive at an age "when they are capable of being influenced by moral and political considerations." To be sure this and many similar bad habits are readily acquired from ignorant or vicious nurses, against whose evil influence QUINTILIAN, long ago, eloquently, and it is to be feared, vainly, warned the careless parents of his time. But aside from extraneous considerations, the heart of man, even in his infancy, is apt to be desperately wicked, and with modern children especially the mild correction of moral suasion may often be judiciously supplemented with the harsher tonic of the rod.

Nevertheless there is a mean in everything, and we do not wish to be held as subscribing to such an extreme of the heroic treatment as obtains with certain school-teachers of Wisconsin. When, for the not very heinous offense of turning his head and smiling, a child is held down upon the floor by two strong men, and cowhided upon body, limbs and face until his executioner is exhausted, it does seem like a waste of judicial forces. Nor is the crime of masticating that strange delicacy, dear to the childish palate, and known as chewing-gum, altogether of so flagrant a nature as to call for ninety-nine blows upon the hand, with a strap sixteen inches long and one and a quarter inches wide. It is equally difficult to conceive what enormity young girls can be guilty of in the school-room, which can be fitly punished only by making them stand upon the floor holding heavy books at arms' lengths, until they faint. All these unique devices, we learn, are used to spur the unwilling intellects of the pupils in the public schools of Janesville, Wis. And if these resources should prove inadequate to keep those fortunate children in the way they should go, doubtless the sense of duty of the school officers is quite equal to adding the knout, the rack, and the thumb-screw to their other aids to learning and incentives to morality. If a child ought to be whipped, let it be whipped; but let the punishment be administered by some person whom nature has secured against the fatal error of mistaking brutality for firmness, and cruelty for justice.

The feeble Express joins with decayed pettifoggers and decrepit hacks in moaning about the presence of military at the elections. It is needless to remind intelligent persons that the Democrats themselves have forced the Government to take proper measures for securing public order on election day. They have threatened to bring out the State militia against Republican voters. JAMES FISK boasts that he will order the Ninth Regiment into the streets. The Police are utterly under the thumb of the Tammany leaders, associated with "Hank" SMITH and "Ben" MANIERRE—two traitorous Republicans. Under these circumstances, the honest voters would have been simply disfranchised. It was the bounden duty of the President to take some precautions against riot. There will be no "military at the polls," unless the Democratic roughs call for them. The preservation of order is the first duty of every Government, and as the local authorities could not be trusted, it was necessary for the President to come to our assistance. No one knows this better than JAMES BROOKS, who foolishly boasted the other night about "pushing the Federal troops into the river."

Do not neglect today your last chance of registering. The Republican Party promises you honest government, and the abolition of the unscrupulous gang which is practically headed by HOFFMAN and FISK. Only idiots or knaves can say that the Republicans are "offering nothing." We offer everything which goes to the formation of a good government, while the Democrats merely promise you unlimited doses of FISK. The man who cannot make up his mind how to act in such an issue as that is scarcely fit to live in a free community.

The Herald regrets that "personalities" have been introduced into the election. Pray what else is there to discuss but persons, under a strictly personal government? Could the Herald have criticised the late Empire in France without mentioning the name of LOUIS NAPOLEON? It is of the very essence of the present struggle that we should expose the men who have wrought so much evil in our city. Are the charges we bring against the Ring true or not? It is to that point the Herald should address itself. We wish we could enlist it on the people's side in this great contest; but if we cannot, surely it will be just, and not condescend to imitate such papers as the World and the Express.

If the people of the Eighth District wish to be represented by a man who has been "everything by turns and nothing long," they cannot do better than elect JAMES BROOKS as their representative in Congress. They will then at least enjoy the distinction of being represented by one who has never forgotten his own interests, however little attention he may have paid to the interests of his constituents.

An address to Republicans in regard to the nomination of a third ticket for municipal offices, appears over the names of many influential members of the party. They are names that fairly represent the moneyed and mercantile classes in the community, and their recommendation will commend itself to the judgment of all who really desire the emancipation of this City from the thraldom of Tammany. They declare that it would be absurd to nominate a third candidate for the Mayoralty, and "that it is difficult to resist the conviction that those who counsel such a course are either accomplices or dupes of the ruling faction." There are more accomplices than dupes in the transaction, we suspect. With the assurance of a fair and peaceable election, and in the presence of Democratic divisions, the address calls upon Republicans to support the ticket headed by THOMAS A. LEDWITH. If the advice be followed as generally as it should be, he will have an excellent chance of being the next Mayor. To insure the overthrow of the Ring, the union of honest men, irrespective of party, is all that is required.

The capture of Dijon by the Prussians is important as marking another stage of the march upon Lyons. A concentration of forces, to which the late besiegers of Metz will furnish their quota, may now be expected to take place about this point. Thence southward along the valley of the Saone to Lyons is about one hundred miles, and as a Winter campaign is now confidently talked of, the investment of the second city of France will, according to present appearances, form the opening movement in it.

There is a sort of grim satire in the bombardment of Paris being made to serve as a jeu de joie for the unification of Germany. If the Kings and kinglets from the south of the Main, who are said to have been invited to assist at the shelling of the doomed city, have any sense of their waning dignity, they will probably excuse themselves from assisting at a ceremony to the preparation of which they have directly contributed so little, and where they would only serve to swell the train of the conqueror. The subjects of his Majesty of Bavaria have certainly had their full share of the perils of the war, but His Majesty's own precious person has been safer in the company of the artistic and musical dilettanti, in whom he so much delights, than in the midst of the dangers of the field. He of Wurtemberg and his reigning brethren of the Duchies have not been more warlike.

When Ex-Marshal MURRAY recently became the willing tool of the Tammany Ring, in spreading an atrocious falsehood against the fair name of STEWART L. WOODFORD, people were unable to divine the motive that led to such an act. It now appears that SWEENY, TWEED & Co. paid a price for the work, and that they got their man at a very low figure, as compared with what they paid other parties for similar services. The price seems to have been a good position, somewhere, that would afford an easy means of living. An official appointment would have been too plainly a reward, and MURRAY was too old a fox to fall into such a trap as that. What should be done for him was a question of some difficulty, but eventually circumstances favored the Ring, and they found an opening. The President of the Seventh-avenue Railroad Company died a day or two ago, and the office thus made vacant will be presented to Mr. MURRAY today as an equivalent for services rendered. This will be bad news for the stockholders of the road, if the result is anything like that which has befallen the Erie Road under the same leading control. When Mr. KERR was President, Tammany Hall could not do everything they desired with that corporation, for he was an honest, fearless man, who stood firmly in their way when wrong was contemplated. Now let the stockholders look out for a régime of jobbery.

WASHINGTON.

Ex-Secretary Cox and the State Dinner—An Israelite as Indian Agent—Mysterious Death of an Official—Health of Chief-Justice Chase—Meeting of the Supreme Court—Various Matters.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—There was a considerable tendency here this evening to remark upon the absence of Ex-Secretary COX from the dinner at the Executive Mansion, which had been originally intended as a farewell compliment to him upon his retirement from the Cabinet. The facts are, simply, that he had broken up his household and prepared to leave upon the afternoon train this afternoon, before the invitation reached him, and could not change his plans without the greatest inconvenience to himself and family.

MEXICAN CLAIMS COMMISSION.

The Mexican Claims Commission have adjourned until the 15th prox., and Mr. WADSWORTH, the Commissioner on the part of the United States, has returned to his home in Kentucky. Today was the last day on which new matter could be introduced in any case without the consent of the opposing counsel.

AN ISRAELITE AS INDIAN AGENT.

The President has agreed to appoint an Israelite to a superintendency of Indian affairs, as he has hitherto overlooked that sect in the division of Indian agents among the different religious denominations.

ALLEGED ASSASSINATION OF AN OFFICIAL.

A dispatch received at the Attorney-General's office today announces that A. B. LONG, United States District-Attorney at New-Orleans, was found dead in his room, this morning, with his throat cut from ear to ear. He was a young man of much promise, a graduate of Dartmouth College, and left here only about a week ago to enter upon the discharge of his office. His friends believe his death was the work of assassins.

NAVAL COURT-MARTIAL.

The Naval Court-martial in session here has finished taking the evidence in the case of Paymaster WASHINGTON. It looks as if nothing worse than carelessness and the fault of having faithless subordinates will be proved against him. Pay-master LOCKWOOD, who tried to escape a trial by concealing his whereabouts, is kept closely guarded. From what is known of the evidence against him his case looks dark.

RESIGNATIONS.

Mr. BELL, who has been acting for a year or more past as Assistant Naval Judge-Advocate, today resigned his position in the Navy Department. Mr. METCALFE, Chief Clerk of the Interior Department under Secretary COX, has tendered his resignation.

Dispatch to the Associated Press.

CHIEF-JUSTICE CHASE'S HEALTH.

Erroneous statements having been recently published concerning Chief-Justice CHASE, it is proper to say that on the 22d inst. he mailed a letter from Narragansett to Mr. MIDDLETON, clerk of the Supreme Court of the United States, in which he mentions that some days before he wrote to Associate Justice NELSON, informing him that he would be unable to attend the adjourned term today, and expressing the hope that Judge NELSON would be able to take his place. But to the surprise and regret of the Chief-Justice, he received a letter from Judge NELSON, in which he said his own health, though improving, was not sufficiently good to enable him to attend Court. The Chief-Justice, therefore, wrote to Mr. MIDDLETON that the Court might know the circumstances, and that the senior Judge (CLIFFORD) might be prepared to take the place thus temporarily vacated. The Chief-Justice concludes his letter by saying: "I walked this morning some twenty minutes, and I shall ride in an hour or two, but I do not regain my strength as rapidly as I hoped." The letter, as usual, was written by his clerk, but was signed by himself, the writing showing no unusual sign of feebleness.

MEETING OF THE SUPREME COURT.

The Supreme Court met today; all the Judges were present excepting Chief-Justice CHASE and Associate Justice NELSON. Associate Justice CLIFFORD presided. Judge CLIFFORD announced that the Court would meet at 11 o'clock hereafter. Assistant Attorney-General TALBOT said that since the Court was last in session Judge HOAR had resigned as Attorney-General, and that A. T. AKERMAN, of Georgia, had been appointed as his successor, at the head of the Department of Justice, under a recent law of Congress. He then presented the commission of appointment, which was read by the clerk of the Court.

Mr. AKERMAN remarked that since the Court was last in session, B. H. BRISTOW had been appointed Solicitor-General under the act establishing the Department of Justice. His commission was also dead. On the motion of Mr. AKERMAN, the new Attorney-General, Mr. HILL, was admitted to practice, and took the usual oath. Several other attorneys were also admitted as practitioners.

NOTICE OF THE DEATH OF JUDGE GRIER.

J. A. HUBLEY ASHTON, Esq., addressed the Court as follows:

MAY IT PLEASE THE COURT: The honorable but melancholy duty of presenting to this Court the proceedings and resolutions of the Bar of Philadelphia, on the occasion of the death of the late Mr. Justice GRIER, has been delegated to me. Since the adjournment of your Honors he who occupied for so many years a seat upon this Bench, and who so recently retired from its labors, has departed, this earthly life. Full of years and full of honors, he has been called to a higher and holier life. The Bar of Philadelphia, by whom he was dearly beloved and profoundly respected, having assembled for the purpose of commemorating this sad event, adopted a series of resolutions which they deemed proper should be brought to the transcribed this Court, and these resolutions I have now the honor to present to the Court.

The Acting Chief-Justice ordered the proceedings and resolutions to be read, and said the Court fully sympathized with the regrets of the Philadelphia Bar, and indorsed all that was said in the resolutions, while the country, in the death of Judge GRIER, mourned the loss of an upright Judge and an impartial and honest man. The proceedings and resolutions were ordered to be placed on the minutes, and, in further testimony of respect, the Court adjourned until to-morrow at 11 o'clock.

A STATE DINNER.

The President gave a State dinner this evening. All the members of the Cabinet, with the exception of Secretary ROBESON, who is absent from the city, were present, together with the several ladies of their respective households; also Mr. and Mrs. CASEY, Mrs. OREVILLE GRANT, Senator EDMUNDS and wife, and Senator MORTON. Ex-Secretary COX was invited to the dinner, but was not present, having previously completed his arrangements for leaving Washington for Ohio in the afternoon early train.

APPOINTMENTS.

The President today appointed ROBERT W. JEWELL, of Mississippi, United States Consul at Canton, and HORACE H. HOUGHTON, of Illinois, Consul at Pernambuco. The appointment of CHARLES E. COSTER as Internal Revenue Collector of the Sixth District of New-York is officially announced today.

Another City Railroad Projected.

A movement is on foot in favor of urging upon the Harlem Railroad Company to build another branch of their City line of horse-railroad, to commence at the intersection of Lexington-avenue and Thirty-fourth-street, (where the Hunter's Point Ferry line turns off toward the East River,) and extend to the upper or northern terminus of Lexington

XXII	2,492	4,139	6,631	27,000
Totals	57,609	61,165	118,774	954,313

The total registration last year, including the two days for the Charter election in December, was 109,606, and the total during the four days for the November election 140,337. The total last year to the date corresponding to yesterday was 110,393. The total yesterday, added to that of the previous registration day gives 118,574, or an excess over the registration to the same date last year of 8,181. The City was perfectly quiet throughout the entire day, and most notably so at the places of registry, where very few applicants were congregated at any one time.

At daylight yesterday morning peaceable citizens were suddenly awakened by the noise of loud and irregular explosions at various places throughout the City, proceeding from the discharge of several hundred 50-inch shells, which were purchased by Tammany with money taken out of the City Treasury, for the purpose of warning its voters to register their names for the November election. The warning, however, was not complied with kindly feelings by many of the voters, whose good-nature was not proof sufficient to withstand the ear-splitting reports of gunpowder which roused them from their sleep, and which were the cause of numerous angry comments.

It was, of course, understood that almost without exception the colored vote would be on the side of the Republican ticket, and a determination was formed by some Tammany ruffians to bully and frighten them by threats and futile challenging. In the place of meeting of the Board of Registration in Laurens-street, in the Seventeenth District of the Eighth Ward, PAT JOHNSON, a well-known Democratic ward politician, stationed himself at an early hour in the morning, and with a number of roughs attempted to browbeat and prevent voters from registering. His conduct became so unbearable and insulting that the supervisor ordered his arrest. He was arraigned before Judge SHANDLEY, at the Jefferson Market Police Court, but was immediately discharged, the Judge evidently considering anything done with a view to Democratic supremacy was in perfect accord with the laws regulating the government of the State.

GEORGE STRANG, a colored man, was brought up at the Jefferson Market Police Court, before Judge SHANDLEY, in custody of Officer MCKINLEY, of the Eighth Precinct, charged with false registration. It appeared on the evidence that on the early part of yesterday, the prisoner registered in the Seventeenth District of the Eighth Ward, stating that he resided in No. 20 Grand-street, which was within that district. Upon examination it was declared that the prisoner made a false entry of his address, and that he resided in No. 81 Thompson-street. He was committed for examination by Judge SHANDLEY in default of bail.

Registration will be renewed this morning at 9 o'clock, and will be continued until 9 o'clock this evening. Every citizen who is desirous of voting must be registered in person. According to the new State law, today is the last day for registration.

On Thursday next the inspectors are required to meet again, at the usual place, and sit from 9 A. M. till 9 P. M., for the purpose of allowing a public examination of the registry. Any elector of the district shall be entitled to examine the lists, and to point out the name of any person whom he believes not to be a qualified voter. The inspectors must mark all such names, and the persons to whom they belong shall not be permitted to vote without being challenged. Any inspector who violates any of these provisions of the law, by refusing to strike off the registry, or to mark the names designated to be marked, or to challenge the persons thus indicated, is liable to imprisonment in the State Prison.

LEDWITH MASS-MEETING.

Cooper Institute Packed With the Opponents of Ring Rule—Speeches by Judge Clerke, Henry L. Clinton, Judge Ledwith, Gen. Shriver, Theodore L. Tomlinson, Wm. C. Barrett and Others.

A most enthusiastic mass ratification meeting of the Regular Democracy was held at Cooper Institute last evening. The great hall was filled to overflowing with an assemblage who were fully aroused to the highest pitch of enthusiasm, and applauded to the echo every sentiment which was uttered against the Ring; and every allusion to the principles of the Regular Democracy, and to the candidates—especially Judge LEDWITH—elicited the wildest applause. The Judge did not make his appearance on the platform until the meeting was well under way, and Mr. CLINTON had nearly concluded his remarks, but as soon as he was discovered the entire audience rose to their feet and gave him a reception which must have been extremely gratifying to him. While Mr. CLINTON was speaking the Seventeenth Ward Ledwith Club entered the hall, and announced their presence by loud cheering, which lasted some minutes. A fine band of music was present, and discoursed excellent music during the evening.

Mr. JOSEPH BLUMENTHAL called the meeting to order and, in a few eulogistic remarks introduced as President Judge THOS. W. CLERKE, a gentleman who had filled the office of Justice of the Supreme Court for sixteen years with honor and integrity.

The Judge was received with tremendous applause, and said that he esteemed it a high honor to be called upon to preside over an assemblage of men who had organized to destroy one of the greatest conspiracies this City had ever seen; a conspiracy formed to overthrow the liberties of the people. They had assembled to take measures to wrest the government from men who had despoiled the public Treasury and had corrupted the entire franchise. They, the representatives of political principles, laugh at principles, and though claiming to be followers of JEFFERSON and JACKSON, are deceitful usurpers. The speaker arraigned them for corrupting the ballot-box, for seizing upon the public treasury and interpolating fraudulent enactments in the laws of the State. He said he arraigned them for filling the Bench with corrupt Judges, and conspiring to enforce their measures in packed conventions. Has it come to this that the Judiciary of the State shall be polluted in this manner? He concluded by expressing a hope that the downfall of these men was not far off, and that these enemies to representative government had been treasuring wrath for a day of wrath and had been tried in the balance and found wanting. The day of election will see our noble City so long oppressed redeemed, regenerated and disenthralled.

The following list of Vice-Presidents and Secretaries was read by Gen. BARNUM, each name being greeted with applause:

Vice-Presidents—Robert Lenox Kennedy, Gen. Lloyd Aspinwall, P. C. Devlin, Levi P. Morton, J. W. Colburn, Robt. D. Hart, L. B. Wyman, Henry F. Vail, Richard Berry, Eugene Conger, Henry Nicoll, James M. Brown, Jos. N. Orvis, David Wood, G. Hilton Scribner, F. A. Taylor, M. L. Crowell, Richard Berry, John McCool, Charles Althoff, E. Munroe, John S. Giles, H. K. Chandler.

Secretaries—William S. Newell, Lucius Hart, Hamilton L. Whitlock, Julian Allen, William K. Lothory, George W. Van Slyck, William G. Grant, Henry Clausen, Jr., James McGovern, Joseph Hoffman, Jr.

Mr. ROSWELL D. HATCH, then read the following resolutions, the first one of which was indorsed with enthusiastic applause. The first resolution was received with tumultuous enthusiasm, and cries of assent and cheers for LEDWITH.

RESOLUTIONS.

Resolved, That the respectable citizens of New-York look with horror and amazement upon the open and shameless corruption of the leaders of Tammany Hall and their allies, hirelings and official tools.

Resolved, That all honest citizens denounce and repudiate those corrupt leaders as the worst enemies of true democracy. We charge them—

1. With having robbed the people of the right of self-government.

2. With having secured their power under the pretense and with the rallying cry of freeing the people from a despotism, which has sought only to extend and intensify that hatefuel and anti-democratic rule at the very first opportunity.

3. With denying expression to the will of the people and stuffing the ballot-box by an organized and disgraceful system of fraudulent registration, repeating and false canvassing.

4. With having made a mere partisan machine of our City Government, and with having, by the exercise of duly despotic authority, by false returns, by the intimidation and oppression of honest citizens and voters, and the protection only of repeaters and ruffians.

5. With having corrupted and debauched the Judiciary, and made of what should be the Gibraltar of our liberties an ally of robbery, violence and fraud, and a vast engine for stifling the aspirations of a free people. Until, at length, the name of a judge of our courts have become not only a byword and a reproach, but a source of national humiliation and distrust.

6. With adding to the burdens of the rich by means of excessive taxation, and consequently with increasing the poor man's rent and then robbing him of a large share of his hard earnings.

7. With attempting to corrupt and debauch the people by bribery, by appealing to the lowest appetites and the basest of passions. And with insulting and defying the people by the most shameless exhibition of their ill gotten wealth, and of their luxury, ease, vanity and licentiousness.

Resolved, That the people of this City, Democrats and Republicans alike, without distinction of party, have been driven to their bulwarks, and determined no longer to submit to be robbed of their dearest rights, but to have fair and honest elections at every cost and at all hazards; to sweep away the miscreants of the Ring, to crush out their corruptions, to bring the City Government back to its normal condition of economy and honesty. To that end they have combined in the present struggle upon a standard-bearer, for the high and responsible office of Mayor, whose name is synonymous with purity, incorruptibility and relentless hostility to the ring—Hon. THOMAS A. LEDWITH.

Resolved, That we recognize the eminent fitness of the respected banker, JEREMIAH N. TAPPAN, for the important office of Controller—an office which is now vacant, owing to the brazen and unconstitutional usurpation of the Ring—to deprive the people of Tappan's services in the selection of a fit successor to Brown and Sweeney, and of the entire ticket put in nomination by the Regular Democracy; and we heartily pledge to it our most earnest support from now until the 8th day of November, and ever so long upon the 8th day of November.

The resolutions were then formally adopted.

ADDRESS BY GEN. CLINTON.

The first speaker was Hon. HENRY L. CLINTON. He spoke to the resolutions, and said that the Convention had put its nomination a class of gentlemen who were representative men in every respect. Mr. LEDWITH was a man of integrity and honor, while GERRIT HALL represented the corrupt organization known as the Tammany Ring, and had represented almost every party that was ever organized. Mr. LEDWITH, on the contrary, represented integrity. He had entered political life at a comparatively early age, and was first sent to the Legislature, where he offended the Tammany Ring by opposing a pet railroad measure. He returned, and was triumphantly elected Judge of one of the Police Courts, where he served faithfully, and gained the approval of his constituents. Last Fall Mr. LEDWITH entered the field again for Justice, and though bitterly opposed by the Ring, was elected really by five thousand votes, but was followed but one thousand by his Ring. The speaker referred to the candidate for Controller as a man of integrity, and one who would, if elected to the office, never allow charges against him to be unanswered for twenty-four hours. The speaker referred to the nominee for the other offices, and said they were men who would discharge their duties faithfully. This contest was not for men, but for principles; a contest for the overthrow of the Ring, which, if suffered to longer exist, would destroy the Government and credit of this fair City, and arise upon the control of the National Government. He explained how it was that this Ring had been enabled to gain such an ascendency. He said that it was because the ruling power was a secret society—Tammany—who own the building and are enabled to say who shall be admitted in the building and, therefore, who are "regular." The speaker referred to the contest last Spring when a majority of the Democratic General Committee demanded that a meeting be held for the discussion of a resolution which provided that no man should hold two one salaried office at a time. To prevent a discussion of this resolution WILLIAM M. TWEED closed the building by the aid of the Police. Then rushing to Albany he, by the assistance of certain Republicans, passed the charter so to be passed which virtually handed over the control of NEW-YORK to the Tammany Ring. No sooner had this been done than TWEED set to work to see what further could be done to take away whatever rights the people then possessed. Within three weeks they incorporated in the Tax Levy a provision giving the appointment of Tax Commissioners and the Corporation Counsel to the Mayor, and enabling the Controller to fix the salary of the Corporation Counsel, thus making that officer the slave of the Controller, and not only that, but that there is a provision that the Controller and Mayor shall fix the salary of the Civil Justices, so that those who favor the Ring have large salaries, and those who oppose the Ring shall have small salaries; and further, the Controller has power to appoint the attendants on the Courts—which is clearly unconstitutional. Again, it is provided in the Tax Levy that the Mayor, Controller and TWEED shall have power to audit and pay any claim against the City—a most dangerous power, as will clearly be seen. This Tax Levy was not passed in the usual way, but was smuggled through Boards of Aldermen without its provisions being generally understood. Again, the power is given to open, widen or close up any street below Fourteenth-street, in this City, and the Mayor, Corporation and TWEED could close up Fifth-avenue or Broadway if they pleased. Why, the Constitutions of the United States never conferred such a power on the President—not even GEORGE WASHINGTON—as has been conferred on this Ring. The speaker then referred to the character of Tax Levies generally. After making reasonable provisions in the Charter, the Ring, last Winter, by the aid of the Tammany Tax Levy, took away the very power that was conferred by the Legislature and charter. The Ring was aided in this business by corrupt Republicans, who had new turned round and were serving their masters. But the honest masses throughout the City had resolved to rise and throw off this mixed gang of Republicans and Democrats. The speaker concluded by relating of a vender of salve who cut off a dog's tail and put on some salve when a new tail grew out, and then putting on some salve on the tail and a new dog grew out. So it was now that a man could not tell which was the Tammany dog with a Republican tail, and which was the Republican dog with the Tammany tail. There was another issue in this canvass, and that was the purity of the ballot-box, which must be enforced as all hazards. He referred to the promise made at the Tammany meeting by the rebel from Arkansas that frauds on the ballot-box should be punished, but he thought that some favoritism would be shown in the prosecution, and that Democratic repeaters would not be punished. The speaker concluded by referring to Mr. LEDWITH as a man who would drag miscreants to light and punish them wherever they were, and endeavor to give the people a good and honest government.

REMARKS BY JUDGE LEDWITH.

Upon Judge LEDWITH's appearance, he was greeted with tumultuous applause. He said that he came here rather as a silent observer than as an active participant in the meeting. But he found the enthusiasm at the mention of his name so great that he could not remain silent. The platform on which he stood was opposition to the Tammany Hall Democracy, whom he had opposed as long as he had been in political life. He felt now that in future there could be no affiliation with the Ring, and he would proclaim unrelenting hostility to these men. Out of the $36,000,000 raised for purposes of taxation, at least $10,000,000 found their way into the pockets of the Ring-masters. He concluded by pledging, if elected, to perform the duties of his office with a sole regard to the interests of the people, and with a view to public economy.

As Mr. LEDWITH concluded, he was received with enthusiastic applause and cheers for "Honest Tom Ledwith."

ADDRESS OF MR. TOMLINSON.

THEODORE R. TOMLINSON was the next speaker. He said that when any organization sought to proscribe foreigners, they should be put down. He said that he was an American, but he was taught this lesson that the exile of Tedway was as good as the native of yesterday, and yet the spirit of proscription is being introduced in the present canvass. He asserted that there was a portion of the Republican Party who were proscribing THOMAS A. LEDWITH because he was an Irishman. This he claimed was the wrong principle and would never succeed in this country. There are Republicans here who hope to be succeed by uniting in this proscription, but the great mass of the people would not aid them in this measure. The laboring classes bear the burden of taxation, but the people do not generally realize it. We do not see taxation, but feel it; and when Mr. LEDWITH said that he would, if elected, practice public economy, he gave an assurance which all, rich as well as poor, would appreciate. He concluded by stating that he was glad to find that Mr. LEDWITH had determined to stand firm and was not deterred from his course by the menaces of Tammany. It was a noble tribute to the Republican Party that it was willing to give support Mr. LEDWITH, and he thanked the Republican Press for their efforts to break down this scourge which afflicts us and gave their support to Mr. LEDWITH. He appealed to every man of high and noble sentiment, to every workman, to give their support to the man who heads this ticket. He was admired because of his honesty; he stands firm and millions cannot shake him. It was to the interests of the Republicans to sustain this candidate for Mayor, as thereby they would be assisting in breaking up the corrupt Ring which now misgoverns the City. He concluded with an eloquent allusion to the new-born Republic of France, and hoped that ere long we would find other republics, Cuba included, seeking recognition at the hands of this Government.

GEN. SHRIVER.

This gentleman was next introduced, and referred to his military career on the staff of Gen. GRANT, and stated that though he was a Democrat, he did not appear as such to-night, but as a citizen of the City of New-York. It was of far more consequence to us how our City should be governed than that any State or national policy should succeed. The real question at issue was the purity of the ballot-box. His language had been criticised, but he was taught while a child that it was wrong to steal, and he could not refer to the Ring as in any terms than as thieves. He supposed he might call them misappropriationists, and Jim Fisk might be called a misdemeanorist, as he went from the Tammany meeting to revel with his seven concubines. Great complaints were made because Federal bayonets were brought here, but if it had come to this, that a man's vote could not be honestly counted, then, he said, give me Federal bayonets. [Cheers.] He had seen Tammany go to Republican Conventions with the purse in one hand and the club in the other. Then clubs were trumps; but if necessary to change rules, we will make bayonets trumps. There were no issues before us that all are not familiar with. The laws and the Legislature may be bad, and we can stand that; but when the Bench is corrupt, Vigilance Committees are in order. In no other city in the land could such outrages on the community be perpetrated without a resort to lynch law, and he wanted Federal bayonets to protect these men from being lynched. The question to be decided next Tuesday was not who was to govern New-York, but whether we had a right to govern. A ticket was presented which all could agree upon. The Young Democracy had simply a nucleus around which all could rally who desired to defeat Tammany, and such is the strength of this organization now, young though it was, that it would succeed provided earnest efforts were made. He thanked God that we had such leaders in this contest, for it was a party of the people, and did not wait any leaders.

WILLIAM O. BARRETT, Esq., was the next speaker. He said that he had but a few words to say. He had severed his connection with Tammany Hall, and had joined this organization for the purpose of giving his support to a reform because to which was declared to be, because it was founded upon justice and honesty. He opposed Mr. HALL, and charged that he had misrepresented the laws of the United States. The law of Congress was intended to protect the honest voter and prevent illegal voting. When he found Mayor HALL and Hilton two men in an indictment of standard character, he was prepared to vote for the selection of Mr. LEDWITH. He was driven into the indictment, he could not support him or any other man who would be guilty of such a conduct. He hoped that on the 8th of November, his audience would go to the polls and aid in electing THOMAS A. LEDWITH and the rest of the ticket.

The meeting then adjourned.

MUNICIPAL REFORM.

Strong Appeal to the Merchants, and all Who Favor Municipal Reform, to Vote for Thomas A. Ledwith.

The following address, signed by prominent business men of this City, has been issued, calling upon all who are desirous to overthrow the corrupt originally fat ring-governs New-York, to united action in support of honest

THOS. A. LEDWITH:

To the Republicans and all who favor municipal reform:

An opportunity has come to deal an effective blow at the corrupt and oppressive combination which now misrules our City. A law has been enacted by Congress providing efficient measures against fraudulent registration, fraudulent voting and fraudulent counting as will at least lessen these evils. In common with all friends of good government, we are encouraged with the assurance that the officers of the law will be sustained by the whole power of the Federal Government, if necessary, to secure a fair and peaceable election and protect every citizen. It happens, too, at this juncture, that a division has occurred in the Tammany ranks relating to the nomination of opposing Democratic candidates for Mayor and other City and county offices. It seems to us that under these circumstances it would be absurd to present a third candidate and it is difficult to resist the conviction that those who counsel such a course are either accomplices or dupes of the ruling faction. We, therefore, urge upon Republicans and all citizens favorable to purifying our local affairs, to register and to vote for THOMAS A. LEDWITH and his associates. It is unnecessary to inquire how the Democratic division originated, or what motive may intermeddle the men who have declared war upon their former political associates. It is enough to know that we can do vote at least to begin the overthrow of the Tammany Ring. Let no man throw away his vote or give it to Tammany by supporting "straight out" Republican candidates for municipal offices, as follows:

Wm. E. Dodge, Isaac H. Bailey, W. R. Vermilyea, John J. Donaldson, John T. Terry, Geo. W. Bruce, T. R. Musgrave, John Grossbeck, Elisha T. Brown, Abraham R. Van Nest, Elisha Brown, Wm. B. Winterton, G. J. Johnson, Henry Clews, L. Grant, Jas. Cannon, Levi P. Morton, John Bonner, H. C. Fahnestock, John Humphreys, D. Willis James, John A. C. Gray, Levi A. Ludwig, Wm. H. Lee, Henry A. Heiser, Alfred M. Hoyt, R. F. Walls, and many others.

THE CAMPAIGN.

Republican Meeting at Jamestown—Speech by Senator Fenton—The Achievements of the Party.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., Oct. 31.—At a large and enthusiastic Republican gathering in Jamestown this evening, Senator FENTON was called to preside. Mr. FENTON, on taking the chair, spoke of the remarkable rise and progress of the Republican Party. Setting out upon its national career in 1856, it gave to its candidate for the Presidency 1,341,000; in 1860 a little over 1,800,000; and again in 1864, 2,225,000; and, finally, with steady increase, it gave at the last Presidential canvass over three million of votes to Gen. GRANT. Nothing could be more gratifying to our friends than this steady and solid increase in the Republican Party, unless it was the great work which that party had accomplished. Its progress and its triumphs fill the grandest pages of our history. He need not attempt to review them. It is true, he said, we may often turn to these instructive chapters with interest and profit. The lessons they furnish are full of significance, and no one can read them without feeling the firmest reliance in the fidelity and patriotism of the Republican Party. Consider its stately march, as step by step, sometimes slowly, but always firmly, it has advanced in the direction of human freedom. It was under the guidance of this party that the country emerged from the incongruity and disgrace of slave institutions. He need not dwell upon the emancipation proclamation, the Civil Rights bill, and the several constitutional amendments to illustrate the progress and fidelity in peace as in war of our patriotic organization, realizing that there is nothing true and valuable in a Government which does not take care and vigilance. Before us are the mighty interests of a young but great and powerful nation enshrined in the national resources of our country in its manufacturing industries, in agriculture, in commerce, in finance. Every great nation and every age has a work to do in the field of undeveloped power, and none to which history has assigned a place upon its pages has a greater responsibility or a greater promise than is now the work of the Republican Party is not yet finished; it must continue to promote the national prosperity and protect the national honor, as involved in its laws of reconstruction, the currency, the debt and its payment. It will continue to enlist the public attention and care, all the elements of national activity, prosperity and peace. Nor does the Republican Party concentrate itself alone to those great objects. It is our earnest desire to see once more, and as an early period, our sail and steam vessels successfully competing for transportation and trade in every part of the world. Commerce will be fostered under wise and beneficent administration. It may be considered, too, that the policy of the present Administration of a faithful and honest collection of the public revenue and payment of the public debt, accompanied by a judicious reduction of taxation, will continue to distinguish the Republican rule. He was very sure, from the indications of the past, that the more difficult parts of the financial problem which is to become more and more a theme for deliberative discussion and division, are safe in Republican hands. We will our party be unmoved by the inspiration of our National faith and the requirements of our National policy adopted. When we were first called to consider the relations of the New to the Old Union in respect to those who are struggling for their own independence and liberty, or being like the Germans of yesterday, represents, with matchless success, the aggressions and encroachments of Imperial ambition, or, like the French of today, are upholding the standard of a new Republic amid the carnage, the destruction and the blood of civil war upon their own soil. There was, he said, another and important work we are called upon to do—a work which involves the peaceful continuance of free popular government through the purity of the ballot, and a work which cannot safely be trusted to other hands. With such a record in the past, and with such an acknowledgment of present duty, we merit no less of the confidence and support of the people than at any former period. He spoke of the importance of the campaign in which we are now engaged, and which is so close to close; and deemed it fortunate that our friends had been able to free themselves in some measure of the harshness of rival interests, and the conflict which comes from personal aspirations, thus disappointing the hopes of the adversary, and giving greater assurance of success. He had regretted the divisions in this district. Troubles came upon us unfortunately in other districts, and now in the City of New-York our party is in confusion and discouragement, growing out of some unfortunate Federal appointment. It is to be hoped that these difficulties may fully and entirely disappear. If his voice could be heard in every valley and upon every hill-side country, town and city, it would be to invoke a spirit of mutual forbearance and harmony, and so far as influence should prevail, our cause would be promoted. He then spoke in terms of hearty approval of the State ticket, and paid a high compliment to Gen. WOODFORD, who was associated with him two years in the administration of State affairs.

Senator FENTON then introduced Hon. CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW, who made an eloquent and able speech. He spoke for one hour with the deepest interest and effect.

It was an enthusiastic meeting, and the speakers were frequently applauded.

Sixteenth Assembly District Woodford and Kaufman Association—Addresses by Messrs. Janney and Ethan Allen.

A regular meeting of the Sixteenth Assembly District Woodford and Kaufman Association was held last evening, at Demilt Hall, corner of Twenty-third-street and Second-avenue. Mr. JOHN D. OTTIWELL, President, in the chair. Mr. JANNEY made an address, urging all Republicans to vote for Gen. WOODFORD. He then gave a summarized history of the misgovernment of this City by the Tammany Ring, and showed how its prominent defenders, in 1863, were not only willing, but anxious to see Gen. ROBERT E. LEE enter New-York at the head of the Confederate Army; that they even expected it, and were much disappointed because Gen. LEE was not, in the early part of July, in the vicinity of New-York, as he had predicted he would be. Mr. WILLIAM ROSS WALLACE then read a poem, written by him for this campaign, which was received with loud applause. Hon. ETHAN ALLEN, Assistant United States District-Attorney, was then introduced. He said that the important matter to be decided at this election was whether the citizens of New-York could have an honest count of the votes polled, a thing that had not been vouchsafed them for years past, under the Tammany Government. The great political issues which have agitated the country had been already decided in accordance with the principles of the Republican Party, but the question to be solved now was, whether the right to exercise the franchise was to be held sacred, or whether it was to become a mere farce. Had the Democratic party no voice power as the Jesse T. HIGHMAN, would today be sitting in the Executive chair at Albany. Mr. ALLEN then made allusion to the false charges that have been alleged against the Republican candidate—complicity in the matter of the dark August, and in the grant of a right to lay the French telegraph cable, both of which he declared to be without foundation in fact. Where Gen. WOODFORD was in the army, his executive ability was noticed by Gen. GRANT, and when, after the capture of Charleston and Savannah, that ability could be made useful, he was told to go to those cities and govern them. The people of this State, being acquainted with the record made by Genral WOODFORD in the capacity of military Governor of those captured cities, would say to him, on the 8th of November, Go to Albany and govern. At the close of Mr. ALLEN's speech the meeting adjourned.

KINGS COUNTY POLITICS.

General View of Shrewd Politicians—Aspirants—How the Democrats Mean to Carry the Election.

The tickets of the contending parties in Kings County are now completed. In looking over the names of the new put forward, no one at all acquainted with the affairs of the county can fail to see that both sides have placed their strongest, if not their best men, in nomination. That the contest will be both close and exciting, is evident to every one, and the Democrats especially are preparing themselves for a desperate struggle. Compromises of the most wonderful character have been effected between ranking Politicians who but three months ago could find no epithets vile enough to apply to each other, are now sounding each other's praises. The most remarkable change of this kind is that which has taken place between Mayor KALBFLEISCH and the candidate for Register, HUGH MCLAUGHLIN. It will be remembered by most readers of the Times that during the recent Prospect Park troubles these gentlemen were the most violent of enemies. MCLAUGHLIN, the Mayor declared, owned the Park Commission, and that body, he also declared, was composed of fools and thieves; who found their account in paying large salaries to men who did no particular amount of work, and in discharging, upon the slightest pretense, on the approach of Winter, the men who really did something for their wages. That, however, is all changed now; the eyes of his Honor have been opened, and he discovers, to his astonishment, that MCLAUGHLIN is the very embodiment of all the virtues; and the "Boss," of course, in turn admits that the stubborn "old Dutchman," whom he so heartily cursed, is one of the most amiable and obliging of human beings. Apart, however, from this little change, it may be proper to observe, for the benefit of the uninitiated, that MCLAUGHLIN who is, in every sense, a representative Democrat, was accused of being indirectly connected with the late election frauds. His presents secretary, after due trial, was convicted and sentenced, but, for some good reason, doubtless, has not yet been punished; and the nephew of MCLAUGHLIN was among the number of the indicted. Street Commissioner FURMY is his especial friend; and Alderman CLANCY, whose character needs no comment, is his right bower in the little game now being played. Such, in brief is the man leading the Democrat in ticket, and those who march under his banner are like unto him. Still the party politicians have determined to elect him, in what manner it is needless to remark. Suffice it to say that in most of the wards in the City the entire number of inspectors of election are Democrats, and when in the Board of Aldermen objection was made by Mr. WHITING to such an outrage, CLANCY simpled insulted, and referred that the Republicans, he guessed, would do the same if they had the chance. The city departments are, of course, crammed full of voters at the present time, who receive pay for saying themselves fresh for hard work on election day. Just one week ago the Water Board notified the Common Council that it would be necessary to borrow little dribbles of money supplied out of some spare fund; the sad doubt being caused by an extensive improvement going on in the Twelfth Assessment District, which had not been calculated upon when the estimate for the expenses of the year had been made. This little means will be generally understood by those who are in the habit of sending them arms and ammunition in exchange for cotton. To support this allegation, he quoted from a report from Judge-Advocate-General HOLT to the Secretary of War in 1865.

REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS.

At the Exchange, yesterday, (Oct. 31,) the attendance was very large for the opening day of the week, and a greater degree of interest was manifested in regard to real estate affairs than usual. This interest seems to be daily increasing. Two Supreme Court foreclosure sales were made as follows:

ROBERTS & McGUIRE, under the direction of GRATE NATHAN, Esq., referee, sold a house and lot on the south-west corner of First-avenue and Forty-seventh-street, for $18,250. The lot is 22x60, and the price obtained was thought to be a good one. The purchaser of the property was HENRY C. BEHRENS, the owner of the mortgage on the premises, and the plaintiff in the foreclosure suit.

JAMES M. MILLER, under the direction of C. A. JACKSON, Esq., referee, disposed of two lots on the south side of One Hundred and Eighty-third-street, 200 feet west of Tenth-avenue, each 25x92.3. The lots were sold together and brought $800 over and above a mortgage of $9,000 upon them. These were all the transactions effected.

At the Exchange in Brooklyn, J. COLE sold three lots, out of twenty-one advertised, the sale of the remainder being adjourned until to-morrow, when a large number of lots in other sections of Brooklyn and in the vicinity of Prospect Park will be offered. The lots sold yesterday are situated on the south side of Bergen-street, 100 feet east of Fifth-avenue, each 22x100. They brought $1,375 each, and were purchased by JOHN ANGUS.

Today, at the Exchange, ROBERTS & McGUIRE will offer for sale the three-story and basement brick house and lot known as No. 37 City Hall-place; also, four full lots on Sixty-third-street, between Ninth and Tenth avenues. Both these sales are peremptory and the terms easy.

At Scotch Plains, N. J., today, A. D. MELLICK, JR., & BROTHER will hold their second grand auction sale, offering some 400 lots. A payment of $10 and the auctioneer's fee is all the payment required on a lot. For the sale, which begins at 12 M., a special train will be run, leaving New-York foot of Liberty-street, at 10½ A. M. All the property lies adjacent to the railway station, and is only distant one hour from the City. The opportunity for investment is a good one.

Today, also on the ground, at noon, HAZARD, APTHORP & Co. will sell nearly contiguous lots in Orange Valley, N. J., at Montrose Station. These lots were specially referred to yesterday, and attention is again called to their desirability. One fact about this sale worthy of mention is that each plot offered will be absolutely sold without reserve to the highest bidder. The property to be offered is owned by Mr. L. S. HASKELL, the originator of Llewelyn Park, an enterprise that has always been well conducted, and it is designed to carry out the sales at Orange, both today and to-morrow, on the same business-like principles. Special trains for the ground will leave New-York today, foot of Barclay-street, at 11 A. M.

On Saturday last, on the premises, D. M. SEAMAN, auctioneer, sold at auction the country residence, lately owned and occupied by Hon. NICHOLAS C. BLAIDVELT, located at Spring Valley, Rockland County in this State. The property is situated on the village above named, near the railway station, and comprises a two-story and attic frame dwelling and office, all the necessary out-buildings, and about one quarter of an acre of ground. The buyer was ANDREW J. TALLMAN, and the price paid $5,500.

By reference to our advertising columns it will be seen that A. D. MELLICK, JR., & BRO., No. 4 Pine-street, offer at an executor's sale, on easy terms, the large Summer hotel known as the Heath House, located at Schooley's Mountain Spring, Morris County, N. J. The house will accommodate between 400 and 500 guests. For those desiring to make an investment of this nature, a good opportunity is here offered.

HAZARD, APTHORP & CO., real estate auctioneers, No. 110 Broadway, report having disposed of the following property at private sale at the price annexed: Four-story high-stoop house and lot, south side, No. 9 West Forty-first-street, $50,000. The property belonged to Rev. H. M. FIELD, and was sold to Mr. WM. R. MARTIN.

The sale of lots belonging to the Simonson estate, by JOHNSON & MILLER, yesterday, at Edgewater, Staten Island, was quite successful, and the attendance good for so late a day in the season. Full details of the transaction will be found below.

HURRICANES AND GALES

Terrible Tornado in the West Indies and Gales on the Lakes.

GREAT DESTRUCTION OF PROPERTY.

Effects of the Heavy Storm of Sunday Night.

HURRICANES AND GALES.

Another Terrible Tornado in the West Indies—Little Loss of Life but Immense Destruction of Property on Land and Water—High Wind at Key West.

HAVANA, Oct. 31, via LAKE CITY, Oct. 31.—Another dreadful hurricane occurred yesterday. It was the severest storm ever known at the west end of the island. Along the south coast many towns were inundated, the crops damaged or destroyed, railroads submerged and telegraphs prostrated. Matanzas again suffered terribly. As far as known no lives have been lost. The schooner Guiding Star dragged her anchors and was driven ashore and completely wrecked under Cabanas, near the guard-ship. The bark Florence Peters was also damaged.

KEY WEST, Fla., Oct. 31, via LAKE CITY, Oct. 30.—A severe hurricane occurred here on the 20th. The brigs Aristook and J. M. Creswell were blown on shore in the harbor. No news has been received from the reefs.

LAKE CITY, Fla., Oct. 31.—The following dispatches from Havana were received here today by mail from Key West, having been delayed by the accident to the cable connecting Key West with Punta Rossa:

Advices from Cardenas state that the loss of life in that city by the hurricane was quite small, but the destruction of property was very great. All the warehouses were destroyed, and a majority of the vessels in port at the time were dismasted and wrecked. No names have been received. The loss will reach millions of dollars. The American vessel Bradshaw is ashore near Matanzas. As far as known no lives were lost from American vessels either at Matanzas or Cardenas. Two men were arrested at Matanzas for stealing property exposed by the hurricane. They were court-martialed and shot. The American brigantine Penniman is ashore at Kingston, Jamaica, and will be a total loss. The crew and cargo were saved.

HAVANA, Oct. 31.—It is estimated that the damage to the sugar cane by both hurricanes is one-quarter of the whole crop. The fruit of the island is half destroyed.

KEY WEST, Fla., Oct. 28.—Schooner Right Bower is reported ashore on Los Key. No particulars have been received.

A Violent Gale Along the Lakes—Vessels Run Ashore and Disabled—Houses Blown Down at St. Louis.

KINGSTON, Ont, Oct. 31.—During a severe gale from the east last night, the schooner William John, with 4,000 bushels of wheat, from Coburg for Edwardsburg, went ashore. The vessel and cargo will be a total loss, and are uninsured. The tug Sarah broke from her moorings and went ashore on Point Frederick.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 31.—A terrific gale has prevailed here since last night from the south and east. The water of the lake is higher than at any time this season. The tug Harrison foundered at 2 o'clock P. M. off Sturgeon Point. The crew was saved by the tug Compound. Capt. DAVENPORT, of the Harrison, was taken from the water after his tug had sank. A schooner, supposed to be the William Kelly, is ashore off Windmill Point. The crew can be seen hanging to the rigging. A life-boat has gone to their rescue. The schooner James Platt, which left here yesterday for Chicago, has returned in distress with all her sails split. It is feared that great damage has been done to the shipping on the lake.

ERIE, PEnn., Oct. 31.—The Canadian schooner Brilliania, bound from Vermilliou to Toronto, with a cargo of grindstones, went ashore here this morning. One of the crew was fatally injured; four others of the crew succeeded in reaching the shore early this morning. The Captain and one man clung to the rigging for four hours, but were finally rescued by a tug. The schooner Elyria, owned and commanded by Capt. REID, of Elyria, Ohio, went ashore in the gale last night, on the Peninsula, opposite this city. The crew clung to the bowsprit and rigging all night, and were not rescued till this afternoon. The first cutter of the revenue cutter Commodore Perry was swamped in going to their aid. Two seamen named ISAAC SMITH and JOHN BOYCE were drowned in the breakers. Others of the crew were picked up by a tug. A bark in distress drifted past here this morning. The Commodore Perry has gone in pursuit. Other disasters are feared, as the gale of last night exceeded in violence any known for many years on the lakes.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 31.—Heavy rains have fallen here at intervals during the past three days. Yesterday morning, during a violent shower, a high wind prevailed, which blew down the malt-house attached to BOCK & GREDDICK's brewery. About 1,000 bushels of malt were buried in the ruins. Another building belonging to BRUNSWICK & BROS., billiard-table manufacturers, on Fifth-street, was crushed by a high adjoining wall, which was blown over on to it. The building contained several unfinished tables and considerable material. The total loss is about $10,000.

First Snow-Storms of the Season.

LEWISTON, Me., Oct. 31.—The first snow-storm of the season commenced last night and still continues. The weather is moderating.

BANGOR, Me., Oct. 31.—The first snow of the season fell here today. Rain at a later hour soon carried it [illegible]

CONCORD, N. H., Oct. 31.—Six inches of snow fell at Bristol this morning, and about the same amount at New-London. The White Mountains are reported to be covered with snow.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 31.—Snow fell in various parts of New-Hampshire last night.

THE STORM.

Serious Effects of Sunday's Rain and Yesterday's Gale—Vessels Disabled and Men Drowned—Cellars Inundated and Buildings Blown Down.

Much damage was done by the storm of Sunday night. Limbs of trees were broken off, signs and window-shutters were blown down. The tide in the harbor rose with great rapidity, and cellars on the river-fronts were inundated and their occupants, where there were any, forced to take refuge in the station-houses. The wind cut up the most extraordinary capers, changing to all points of the compass. At first it was blowing north-west; it then changed a little to the eastward, and then to the southward, and finally it blew due west, about 5 o'clock in the morning. At this hour it was raining in torrents, and at 6 o'clock there was a respite.

On the New-Haven and Hudson River Railroads, the tracks were in many places submerged. At several points on the New-Haven Road, trees were uprooted and thrown across the track. The trains on both of these roads were in consequence behind time. The mails from Albany, due here at 7, did not arrive until 11 o'clock.

The gale continued during the day yesterday, and considerable damage was done to the small craft in the harbor. The wind suddenly blew the jib loose of the lighter Clara, owned by EDDY & Co., of No. 107 Wall-street, while in the East River, off Fulton Ferry. Two men were swept overboard by the accident. One of them, JOSEPH PEONEY, aged forty-five, of No. 40 Willow-street, narrowly escaped drowning, and the other, HENRY HOGANS, of Sackett-street, was drowned. His body has not been recovered. Another lighter had her mast carried away, and was in much peril, until rescued by a tug-boat. Another lighter had her main-sail torn to shreds, and drifted in the stream until a tug came to her aid. Waves broke over the landing at Governor's Island, and rolled over the walls at Castle Garden.

The ship Glad Tidings seems to have been particularly unfortunate. After having collided with the bark Charles Forbes, off South Shoals, Oct. 28, she carried away her mizzen-topmast and topgallant-mast in a collision with the ship Harvest Queen, as she was coming to anchor in the harbor during the gale of yesterday morning. Owing to the high wind prevailing but few small vessels have ventured to come into the harbor, and it is possible that there may be much information obtained to-morrow of the disastrous effects of the gale on our immediate coast.

The gale played many freaks in New-Jersey. A two-and-a-half story frame dwelling in Sixth-street, Jersey City, which was in the process of erection, was lifted up from its foundations and wrecked in the street. Mrs. WHITEHOUSE and her two sons were in the house, but were fortunately not injured. The damage amounted to $4,000.

The roofs of two houses in Hoboken were lifted off, trees were torn from their roots, fences were destroyed, meadows submerged, and people living at the foot of the bluffs were obliged to ascend to escape the descending torrents.

The wind blew a gale nearly all day yesterday in Newark. On Clinton-avenue a frame house, partly built, belonging to C. W. REEVES, was blown down, and one man was quite seriously, though probably not fatally, injured. Shutters and signs were blown from stores and other buildings, and pedestrians remained in-doors when possible.

TERRIBLE DROWNING AFFAIR.

A Boat with Eight Men Capsized at South Cove—Three Drowned.

At the south side of Jersey City there is a strip of water known as South Cove. This strip is in some places a quarter of a mile wide, but at the foot of Washington-street the dock of the Central New-Jersey Railroad runs out from Communipaw to within about 100 feet of Jersey City. At this point, which is only a few rods from the river, the water runs through the narrow outlet swiftly, and in windy weather is quite rough. A large number of Central Railroad employes live in Jersey City, and take their meals at home. For the accommodation of this class a ferry has been established, running across the cove from the foot of Washington-street, to the railroad pier. The boats are only a flat-bottomed row-boat, capable of holding four or five persons, and is not particularly safe for a larger number, especially if the water is rough. Yesterday, shortly before 12 o'clock, at noon, a number of persons were waiting to cross, and the little boat was so crowded as to be unsafe, and two or three of the men got out, preferring to wait until the next trip. Seven men, however, beside the boatman, were in the boat, when, while about half way across, the boat was capsized. A heavy wind was blowing at the time in an opposite direction from the flow of the water, making it exceedingly rough, and the boat was overloaded so that its edge was almost even with the water. BEMONT, the boatman, was unable to pull the boat down to the pier against the wind and tide, and a movement of some of the party drew the water into the boat, when it was capsized. Eight men were thrown into the water: Chris. Bemont, the boatman, Michael Fallon, John Birmingham, Patrick Gagen, John Harnan, Dennis Hernan, John Finnerty, and one Monagnan. The men were all carried rapidly up the cove, where it is much wider than below. Several boats were put out as soon as possible and five of the men were rescued. PATRICK GAGEN and JOHN FALLON, living at No. 213 Grand-street, and DENNIS HERNAN, living in Morgan-street, were drowned. It was impossible during the high wind to make any attempt to rescue the bodies, and none of them were recovered. As soon as the accident was known the dock was crowded with men, women and children. A good deal of excitement was caused throughout the lower part of the City. The drowned men were married and leave families.

A GRAND ENTERPRISE.

French Apartment Houses in New-York—An Association Formed—The Proposed Building, and other Plans—Prominent Citizens in the new Movement.

The new building now in process of erection by PARAN STEVENS, Esq., on the corner of Fifth-avenue and Twenty-seventh-street, which, when completed, is to be let in apartments to private families, and the alterations now progressing in the Haight mansion, formerly occupied by the New-York Club, on the corner of Fifth-avenue and Fifteenth-street, which, when finished, will be devoted to the same use, have already attracted much attention. The French style of living is, as yet, an untried feature of Metropolitan life, but, from present indications, it promises to be a successful one. To more thoroughly test the question, within the past few weeks an association has been formed in this City, composed of some of our best-known citizens, who design erecting a truly Parisian domicile. For this purpose a number of lots have been secured in the upper part of the City, more eligibly situated. Twelve lots have been purchased in all. Eight of these, or an entire block front on the avenue, making a plot 200 feet front by 200 feet in depth. The other four lots directly in the rear, it is proposed to devote to a street, fifty feet in width. The building to be erected will be in size that of the plot above mentioned, with a street on all four sides. It is to be constructed of white pink brick, with sandstone trimmings, and seven stories in height. Unlike the Stevens and Haight Houses, which are to be entered through a wide tiled hall, the hotel of the Association has an entrance through a gateway into a large circular court covered with a glass dome. This will be the only entrance from the street. At the rear of the hotel grand staircases will connect with each story, and, in addition, two steam elevators will be employed. There will be eight apartments, entirely distinct from each other, upon each floor, and the structure will, when finished, accommodate sixty families. Upon the first floor will be located a large restaurant for the exclusive use of occupants of the hotel, and where food will be provided at cost price. The kitchens of the establishment will be at the top of the house, and plated with boiler-iron, in order to make them fire-proof. Connected with the porter's lodge will be a telegraph, communicating with each room in the building, so that any inquiries may be answered at a moment's notice. Upon the roof of the hotel will be a green-house, and a promenade covered with glass, 600 feet in circumference, and surrounding the entire building. These are only a few of the comforts and conveniences proposed, and the projectors of the enterprise announce that, when finished, the hotel will be the most elegant structure of its kind in the City, both in outward appearance and in all other respects. The entire cost will be about $600,000.

The enterprise is conducted by a joint-stock company, composed of sixty members, each of whom own one suite of apartments. The management of the hotel is vested in an executive committee, similar to the management of the Union League Club. As has been said, the ground has been already secured, and about forty subscribers have thus far been enrolled. A meeting of the stockholders will be held to-morrow, when the plan of the building, designed by Mr. GEORGE HATHORNE, architect, will be submitted, and work begun. Among the well-known gentlemen whose names are connected with the enterprise, many of whom will occupy apartments in the hotel, are the following: Parke Godwin, Rev. H. M. Field, Rev. Dr. Cheever, Lamt Thompson and Eastman Johnson, Col. Church, of the Army and Navy Journal; H. G. Stebbins, F. M. Goddard, David Greenhood, Judge Porter, Mr. Pinchot, Mr. Hicks and Col. Hazard, of the firm of Hazard, Apthorp & Co., real estate auctioneers. The following is the official schedule of the advantages to be secured by the new arrangement, as submitted to subscribers before obtaining their signatures:

It is proposed to erect a building on the French apartment system, on a plan of joint partnership, and combining these advantages:

1. One of the finest sites procurable. 2. Architecturally beautiful. 3. So large that all the modern contrivances for comfort and convenience can be realized at a very low cost to each apartment. 4. With steam passenger elevators, carriage-way, court-yard, and a system of bells, speaking-tubes, telegraph, &c., for speedy announcements. 5. The laundry, kitchen, &c., on the court-yard front, on the roof, and so disposed as to prevent any odor in the street front, on the roof. 6. Apartments at an average cost of about $12,000. 7. Heating, drying and cooking by steam. 8. A complete system of ventilation. 9. Each stockholder to have his own apartments finished in his own taste, paying any excess or receiving any deduction from average cost. 10. Any one wishing to sell his apartments, to give preference to the Association, to take them at cost. 11. Any one wishing to lease, to give preference to the Association, at ten per cent. net interest on cost. 12. Any profit received by the Association from sale or lease to go to owner, the object being selection and not profit. 13. Restaurant and laundry to be used at actual net cost. 14. Upon completion of the plans and selection of a site, the scale of valuations for each apartment to be established upon, following more or less the plan obtained average cost; and selection at this scale to be made by the stockholders in the order in which they been so made. 15. It is proposed to invite the co-operation of those only who are personally known to be unexceptionable, and to maintain control of the future occupation, as proposed by Nos. 10, 11 and 12.

Caving of an Embankment at Hudson City, N. J.—Two Persons Killed.

Yesterday afternoon another serious accident occurred at Hudson City, N. J. The Pavonia-avenue and West-end Horse-car Railroad runs through a deep cut after crossing the Erie Railroad. The Company has been widening the cut and removing the earth for grading purposes. About 3½ o'clock, yesterday, a number of men were employed there, one of them digging away the under portion of the bank, while several others were above, trying to throw down the undermined embankment by using their crowbars. The earth, weighing some ten or twelve tons, fell sooner than was expected, and buried DAVID CRONAN, the man who was working underneath, and, as it afterward proved, a boy named MCADOO. A gang of men were working further up the road, and they were called, and CRONAN was dug out, still alive, but with his jaw broken and in a dying condition. He was removed to the hospital, and the men proceeded with their work of putting the dirt in carts. About half an hour afterwards one of the men threw up a boy's cap. This excited suspicion, and rapidly digging away they came upon the body of a boy, SAMUEL MCADOO. The boy was about ten years old, and entirely dead. The body was taken to his home in Harrison-place. It is supposed he was playing under the embankment near CRONAN, when it fell. CRONAN, however, was too badly injured to give the information, or the boy might also have been saved. This is the second accident of the kind in three days at this place.

ATTEMPTED MURDER.

A Man Tries to Poison His Wife—Arsenic Concealed in a Glass of Lager-Beer.

Yesterday, HERMANN WELKATES, a German residing in Hoboken, was before Recorder PORS charged with having attempted to murder his wife. According to the wife's statement, the attempted murder was the end of a long course of ill-treatment which she had suffered at the hands of her husband. Fifteen months ago she became his wife, and after she had lived with him a few months he began to beat and ill-treat her. She left his house in August last and went home to live with her mother, in Bloomfield, N. J. WELKATES continued to occupy his house in Hoboken, and on Saturday, upon meeting him in the streets of Hoboken, at which place she had come on a visit to a lady friend—he invited her to step up to his house. He treated her kindly and she went with him, hoping that he might be again what he was when they were first married. Arrived at his house, he asked her to drink a glass of lager. She was about to drink it when she noticed a quantity of white powder in the bottom of the glass. Upon her refusal to drink the liquid which he had prepared for her, WELKATES attacked her, knocking her down and beating her to insensibility. The noise attracted the attention of the people who occupied the lower floor of the house, and their timely appearance put a stop to the exhibition of the assailant's rage. He left the house. Upon Mrs. WELKATES' recovery she pointed to the poisoned beer and narrated what had occurred. The glass of lager was kept for examination. It was proved to contain an amount of arsenic sufficient to kill half a dozen persons. WELKATES was arrested, prosecuted by the Recorder committed him to the County Jail to await the action of the Grand Jury.

Billiards—Mons. Garnier Plays with Cyrille Dion.

Yesterday afternoon, at FLYNN & MARIN's billiard-room, CYRILLE DION had an informal tilt at billiards with Mons. ALBERT GARNIER, the recently-arrived French player. The game was French caroms, and in a very few minutes there was an audience of nearly 200 well-known amateurs. It was evident that both men were studiously playing well within themselves, CYRILLE being perfectly careless, and Mons. GARNIER breaking up the balls disdainfully when he had them in good position for what the French call a "series." The easier shots of the French professor constituted the chief and most commendable feature of the play, and were rewarded with applause. When the game terminated, GARNIER had scored 123 to CYRILLE's 75. There was no run above 20, neither expert exerting himself much to "nurse" the balls. The other night, GARNIER, who is a rapid player, scored 1,000 at the four-ball game in thirty-five minutes, counting in twos and threes.

LOCAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

NEW-YORK.

A calendar of sixty-five civil cases has been prepared for trial at the November Term of the United States District Court, which commences today. Judge BLATCHFORD will preside, and Messrs. EMMERSON and SIMONS, of the District-Attorney's office, will appear for the Government. Among the cases is one against C. H. LILIENTHAL, the tobacconist, for the condemnation of $126,000 worth of property, for an alleged violation of the Revenue laws.

Rev. Dr. BOOTH was, on Sabbath evening last, inaugurated as Pastor of the University-place Church, in the presence of a large congregation. This Church was formerly one of the wealthiest and most prominent in this City, but since the death of Dr. POTTS has been unfortunate. It has recently been revived up by Dr. BOOTH's congregation, who have purchased the church, and who now change their place of worship from Mercer-street to this locality.

The steamers belonging to the Bremen line will hereafter carry the direct mail, sailing on Saturdays as usual. There is little probability of a change in the day of sailing being made, even though thereby the vessels would be enabled to carry a larger mail. The proposition of the Postmaster-General has been telegraphed to the owners of the line at Bremen, and their answer is expected in a few days.

The Union Theological Seminary is to be rebuilt on lots secured for that purpose in the upper part of the City. The sum of $600,000 is needed to place it on a firm basis there, and $310,000 of the amount has been subscribed. The Seminary has educated 1,400 students, and graduated 640 for the ministry, and has now 140 within its walls receiving instruction.

JAMES HAYDEN, who gave as his residence an impossible number in Washington-street, was arrested, yesterday, on a charge of having, on the 19th ult., stolen two gold watch-cases, valued at $150. The prisoner and a confederate entered the store of JEREMIAH H. WOOD, at No. 180 Broadway, when the attention of the clerk was diverted from HAYDEN's movements while he robbed the safe. The thief was pursued and seen to pass the cases to a man waiting at the foot of the stairs. Arraigned before Justice HOGAN, at the Tombs, the accused was held for trial.

JAMES KEEGAN, residing in the tenement-house No. 221 East Thirty-eighth-street, in the course of a family quarrel on Sunday morning, flung a frying-pan at his daughter ELLEN, striking her on the head and cutting her dangerously. KEEGAN was arrested by Officer FALLON, of the Twenty-first Precinct, and was yesterday arraigned in the Yorkville Police Court, before Justice BIXBY. A note was received by the Court from Dr. MCLAUGHLIN, stating that he believed that the girl's injuries would prove fatal. The unnatural father was committed to await the result of his daughter's injuries.

Sunday night an attempt was made to destroy the premises No. 34 West Fifteenth-street by an incendiary, who set fire to the rubbish in the closets in the kitchen and on the first floor. The flames were fortunately discovered and extinguished before any damage had been done beyond what can be covered by $100. The Police are investigating the case, but as yet no clue has been obtained to the perpetrator of the crime.

JOHN C. GERDES, of No. 29 Rector-street, caused the arrest of Thomas FITZPATRICK, yesterday. The prisoner ran through the tenement house with an open knife in his hands, threatening every one he met, and attempted to stab the complainant. Justice HOGAN held the prisoner for trial.

PEDRO MALTERAN and JOHN J. CHANDON, who were arrested on suspicion of being about to engage in a duel, were yesterday arraigned before Justice DOWLING, and permitted to give bail in the sum of $1,000 each, to await the result of an examination, to be held next week, at the convenience of the magistrate. The proposed belligerents were accompanied by several of their personal friends, who seemed to think the affair a huge joke.

In the Yorkville Police Court, yesterday, RICHARD FLANAGAN and HENRY SHANNON were held in $500 bail each for feloniously assaulting MARTIN RIELLY, of No. 373 West Fifty-second-street, by striking him on the head and cutting him severely with bottles.

JOHN MURPHY, aged fifteen years, of No. 46 James-street, yesterday fell through the hoist-way at SHIPMAN'S book-bindery, No. 29 John-street, from the fourth floor to the first, and received severe contusions, but escaped without any more serious injuries. He was taken to the Park Hospital.

GEORGE RILEY, of No. 477 West Forty-first-street, while running after a dog in Forty-second-street, near Eleventh-avenue, yesterday, was shot in the groin by the accidental discharge of a pistol he had in his pocket. The wound is believed to be very serious.

The report from Washington that the census of this City is to be retaken has not been officially confirmed. No orders have been received at the Marshal's office as yet for the re-enumeration.

The City Chamberlain has paid over to the Controller $7,651 04 interest received on public moneys during October, making a total of $78,148 04 paid over from this source by Mr. BRADLEY.

The important suit of the Erie Railway Company against CORNELIUS VANDERBILT, involving $8,000,000 in cash and stocks, has been again postponed until the first Monday in December next.

An unknown man died at Bellevue Hospital, on Sunday, from exhaustion, consequent on a plunge in the North River, made from a Hoboken ferry-boat. An inquest will be held by Coroner FLYNN.

THOMAS CASEY, who was accused of causing the death of THOMAS MCHENRY by a blow, was yesterday discharged by Coroner FLYNN, as the evidence did not sustain the charge.

Mr. A. W. HUMPHREYS, of this City, will deliver an address at the American Institute, at 4 o'clock P. M. today, on "Iron and its Manufacture."

It is said that Mr. ALGERNON S. SULLIVAN has been "presented" by the Ring Mr. G. W. BLUNT's place as Assistant District-Attorney.

The Board of Assistant Aldermen had no quorum yesterday.

BROOKLYN.

The fourth anniversary meeting of the Brooklyn, E. D., YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION was held last evening in the New-England Church, South Ninth-street. The exercises, which were opened by Rev. Dr. CARROLL, of the Lee-avenue Reformed Church, consisted of music, under the direction of Prof. MERRIAM, reading of the Scripture, and addresses by the retiring President, Mr. J. B. THOMAS, and the incoming President, Rev. Dr. TAYLOR, and others.

The large church edifice was well filled with the members and numerous friends of the Association.

A few days ago a young man named WARD sustained accidental injuries which resulted in death, and his funeral, on Sunday afternoon, was attended by his mother, Mrs. ELLEN WARD, of No. 19 North Fifth-street, E. D., who exhibited the most intense maternal grief throughout. Immediately after the young man received the rite of sepulture, his mother sank lifeless in the room from which his corpse had been removed.

LONG ISLAND.

Yesterday morning, early, as a farmer was driving into Hunter's Point by way of Jackson-avenue, he noticed by the road-side an overturned express wagon, and on closer inspection he found that beneath the wagon-box, and partly covered with various articles of household goods, was the body of a man. It was but the work of a moment to uncover the body and clear it from the wreck. It was found to be unconscious, but after a considerable time spent in chafing the hands and applying restoratives, the person gradually came to. It was found that he had been drunk since Saturday, and had started early Monday to return, when the accident happened. The man refused to give his name, and his horses being found, he started for home.

JOSEPH LYONS was brought before Justice QUARTERMAN, of Flushing, yesterday, charged with cruel and inhuman treatment toward his wife. He has been so accustomed to whipping her that when brought into Court he could not conceive that he had been guilty of a crime. Justice QUARTERMAN has resolved that these inhuman husbands must be punished, and so LYONS was sent to the County Jail for thirty days. The poor woman has been so badly used by her drunken master that her spirit is quite broken, and her back nearly so.

Rev. SAMUEL KING, pastor of the Fourth-street M. E. Church, of Williamsburg, and formerly pastor of the Hunters' Point M. E. Church, has been suffering from brain fever for the past week. Yesterday he became violent in his ravings that it was found necessary to remove him to the hospital. His life is despaired of.

WM. WALLACK, Jr., a young man residing in Ravenswood, accidentally shot himself, yesterday afternoon, while hunting, near Calvary Cemetery. The charge of shot entered his leg. It is not certain whether the limb can be saved.

WESTCHESTER COUNTY.

According to the assessment rolls recently prepared, relative to property in Mount Vernon, it appears that the real estate residents is set down at $817,000; real estate of non-residents at $216,125; personal property, $13,000—total, $746,125, being an increase during the year of $35,207.

During the last three months the number of prisoners confined in the county jail at White Plains has averaged 65; nevertheless their sanitary condition has been so good that the visits of a medical gentleman have not been required, neither has it been necessary to prescribe any medicine for the inmates. This is considered very remarkable, inasmuch as malarious fevers have prevailed to an alarming extent in all directions.

NEW-JERSEY.

WILLIAM VAN HOUTEN, one of the Morristown incendiaries, has been bailed in $6,000 for appearance before the Supreme Court to answer the charge of complicity with GIBSON KEET in firing the several buildings in Morristown. The sentence of GIBSON KEET will not be imposed until after the trial of the other indictments.
